

U. S. Admiral and Galvao Confer on Freeing Passengers

Talks Aboard Santa Maria Reported to be Favorable

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—A U.S. admiral met Portuguese rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao at sea today in a conference that could mean swift freedom for the nearly 600 captive passengers aboard the hijacked liner Santa Maria.

Atlantic fleet headquarters in Norfolk, Va., announced the rendezvous of Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith Jr., and the fiery-eyed author-adventurer who seized the $16.5 million ship nine days ago.

Smith reported by radio today to Atlantic fleet headquarters that his first talks with Galvao were "in general, good."

Addresses Passengers

Smith talked with Galvao and then spoke to the assembled passengers. There were no reports of what he told the shanghaied group of nearly 600 which includes 40 Americans.

The rebel leader told Smith he believes the new Brazilian administration—taking office today—will permit the Santa Maria to enter Recife tomorrow.

Smith, the navy's Caribbean commander, sped out from Recife at daybreak aboard the U.S. destroyer Gearing to a point about 35 miles offshore where Galvao waited out the clock for the inauguration today of a new Brazilian president who has informally offered him and the ship safe haven.

Cross by Whaleboat

The navy announced the admiral went aboard the Santa Maria at 6:50 a.m. EST. This conformed to original plans. It was reported here last night that Galvao had asked that the meeting be held on the destroyer.

The Gearing halted about 500 yards from the Santa Maria and Smith and his party, including

Kennedy Will Air Recovery Plan Thursday

President to Send 7 to 10 Messages in Next Few Weeks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will send congress a special message Thursday on the administration's program for recovery from the recession which he says has prevailed the last seven months.

Next Monday he will send another special message to the capitol—on the balance of payments problem and the related flow of gold out of the United States.

Kennedy's plans were announced at the White House by House Speaker Sam Rayburn after the President's weekly meeting with Democratic congressional leaders.

7 to 10 Messages

Rayburn told an informal news conference that Kennedy now is planning to send from seven to ten special messages to congress during the next few weeks. These will deal with specific problems and programs which the President sketched in broad terms in his State of the Union message yesterday.

The first of the special messages Thursday will deal with economic recovery and growth, Rayburn reported.

In response to questions, the speaker and Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, the house floor leader, said they had no detailed information on the scope of that message. They did not know, for example, whether it will deal with such things as the administration's proposal to increase the minimum wage from $1 an hour to $1.25.

Rayburn also was unable to say whether the economic message will go into Kennedy's plans for a temporary increase in the duration of unemployment benefits.

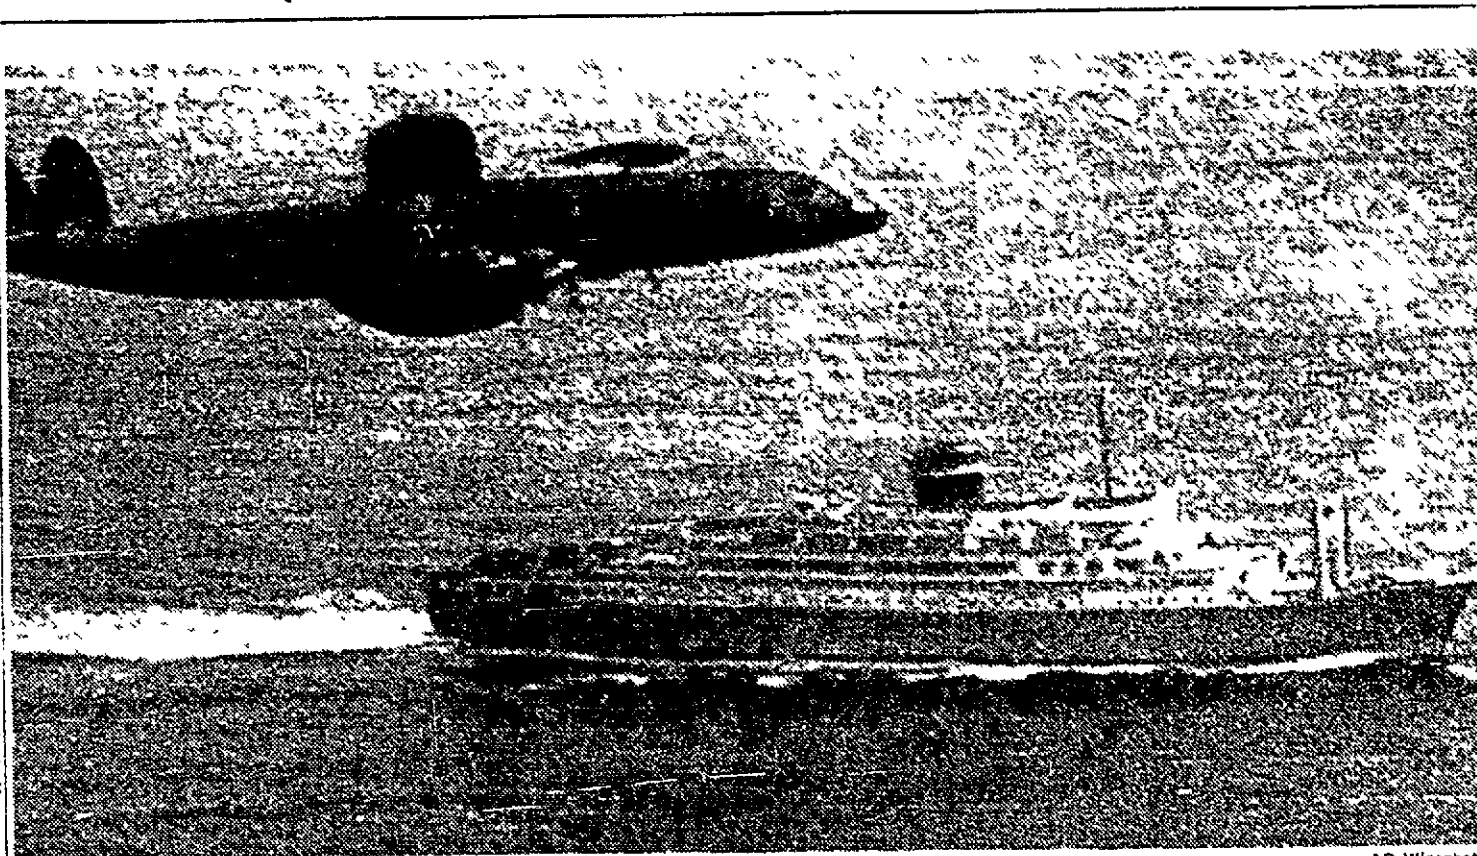

Decision on Talks With Khrushchev Put Up to Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist sources say Soviet Premier Khrushchev plans to be in the United States for the United Nations session in March and it is up to President Kennedy whether the two will meet.

Khrushchev himself is represented as agreeable to a meeting.

Word of the Soviet Chief's intentions and attitude was brought to Washington yesterday by Communist diplomats attached to the U.N. They said they got it from Moscow.

The General Assembly reconvenes March 7. The sources said Khrushchev intends to be there for one week.

A U. S. Navy Patrol plane flies over the rebel-held Portuguese liner Santa Maria in the Atlantic Ocean off the Brazil coast. Arrangements were being made today for the disembarkation of the passengers in Recife or off its shores by U. S. Admiral Allen E. Smith Jr. and rebel captain Henrique Galvao.

217 to 212 Ballot on Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house voted today to enlarge its rules committee in an effort to curb the power of a conservative coalition.

The roll call vote was 217-212. Voting for the increase were 195 Democrats and 22 Republicans. Against it were 64 Democrats and 148 Republicans.

The decision to boost the committee membership from 12 to 15 was a personal victory for Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., in a power struggle with Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., of the rules committee.

It also was at least a surface victory for the new administration of President Kennedy, whose legislative program the change was designed to help. The closeness of the vote presaged tough going ahead for much of the Kennedy program.

Speaker's Appeal

Just before the voting started Rayburn made one of his rare descents to the well of the house to speak for the plan.

Declaring the change "is the only way we can be sure" of enacting Kennedy's legislative program, Rayburn urged:

"Let's move this program. Let's be sure we can move it."

Rayburn spoke soon after Smith had assured the house, "I have no quarrel with the speaker."

Smith urged the house to avoid what he called "a bad precedent" and said he had promised not to obstruct five major Kennedy measures.

Rayburn, however, said, "the issue is simple. We have elected to the presidency a new leader. . . . He demonstrated yesterday we are neither in good shape domestically nor in the foreign field. He wants to do something about it."

New Setup

Rayburn said he thinks the house should be able to "work its will on the major issues."

The rules committee now will be composed of 10 Democrats and five Republicans instead of eight Democrats and four Republicans. In theory, committee control will be in the hands of eight Democrats presumably sympathetic to the Kennedy program and responsive to the wishes of the speaker.

In the past, the committee has been dominated by four Republicans and two Southern Democrats, Smith and Rep. William M. Colmer of Mississippi.

The rules committee channels the flow of legislation to the house floor and determines the terms of debate.

Only eight representatives were missing as Rep. James W. Trimble, D-Ark., a member of the rules committee, called up the resolution about which so much controversy has swirled in the past few weeks.

Brother, Sister Die In Milwaukee Tragedy

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Two children died in County Emergency Hospital today less than an hour after they were carried from their burning flat by firemen.

The victims were identified as James Lee Holts Jr., 5, and his sister, Janta, 4.

They apparently were trapped by swiftly moving flames in the second floor living quarters of the two-story building on the near North Side.

Chimp in Atlantic; Sent Up 155 Miles

Tiny Passenger Apparently Lives Through Space Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A chimpanzee-carrying space capsule was rocketed 155 miles high today and dropped into the Atlantic Ocean 420 miles away, where it was sighted by a plane. The tiny passenger apparently lived through the flight.

The National Space Agency reported the 374 pound male chimp was alive and performing assigned behavior tasks during the 16-minute flight which carried the one-ton capsule 130 miles beyond its target.

Radio contact apparently was lost when the capsule smacked into the water after being eased down by parachute.

The nearest recovery ship was reported at 1 p.m. to be about a three-hour journey from the capsule.

Even though the chimp comes through in good shape, the big error by the Redstone rocket may mean another long postponement in the launching of a manned capsule. Officials wanted a perfect performance before risking a human life.

Thrust too Strong

Improper performance of the booster produced a higher than normal thrust that propelled the capsule to a peak speed of 5,000 miles an hour. The intended flight program was to carry the one-ton capsule 115 miles up, 290 miles down range at 4,200 miles an hour.

The steeper re-entry path that the capsule would take on the flight, probably meant the chimp sustained more crushing deceleration forces than was planned.

If all had gone right, he would have endured forces 11 times the pull of gravity.

The 83-foot rocket roared away from its pad here at 11:55 a.m. after a delay of nearly four hours from the scheduled launch time.

The majority of the recovery forces were stationed in the intended impact area 290 miles down range. Other craft were placed on both near and far sides of the mark in case the capsule missed it.

Six of the seven astronauts were spectators at the launching. If the chimp comes through the flight unharmed, one of the human space men may travel the same route within two months.

Changes Time of News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today shifted the time of his news conference Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. CST.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the change was made because Kennedy has scheduled a meeting of the National Security Council for 10 a.m.

Salinger said that Kennedy will alternate his news conferences between morning and afternoon. Accordingly, he added, the next news conference after Wednesday's will be held in the morning.

50 Hospitalized In Louisiana by Chlorine Gas

NEW ROADS, La. (AP)—Green chlorine gas—drifting in deadly clouds—killed animals and drove nearly 50 persons to hospitals in southeast Louisiana today.

Officials of St. Joseph Hospital hurriedly counted more than 40 patients, coughing, rasping, blinded by the pungent fumes that spewed up from a freight train wreck near the plantation community of Labarre five miles to the northwest. Still more were coming.

They said five patients, all children, were in serious condition.

The state of Louisiana ordered civil defense and national guardsmen armed with carbines and wearing gas masks into the area about 30 miles northwest of the state capital at Baton Rouge.

Strike Ties Up Transit Line

Workers Absent With Excuse That They are Sick

BOSTON (AP)—An unauthorized strike of operating employees shut down rapid transit and bus service throughout this sixth-ranked metropolitan area today—the second such stoppage in five months.

Gov. John A. Volpe summoned Metropolitan Transit Authority General Manager Thomas J. McLernon and two officials of the strikers' union to a midmorning conference at his office.

As thousands of automobiles poured into the city, Boston Traffic Commissioner Thomas J. Griffin banned all downtown parking of pleasure cars. His office explained the action was taken in anticipation of an increase in the normal daily traffic from 100,000 cars to about 250,000.

The strikers stayed away from their jobs with the excuse they were sick—an explanation repeated over and over in early morning telephone calls. But William V. Ward, one of the MTA board of trustees, asserted this was patently untrue.

30-Year Sentences For 6 Americans

HAVANA (AP)—Informed sources at La Cabana prison said today six Americans have been sentenced to 30 years in prison for crimes against the Cuban state. The prosecution had demanded the death penalty.

A military tribunal trying the six ended its deliberations Saturday. There were reports Prime Minister Fidel Castro himself had taken up the case. This led to speculation he might not be so harsh with the Americans as he had been in 1923, to Joseph Bard, a goodwill gesture to the new Kennedy administration.

Defense attorneys said they had not yet been formally notified of the court's decision.

Dorothy Thompson Dies in Portugal

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Dorothy Thompson, 66, famed newspaper columnist, author and lecturer, was found dead in her hotel room today.

A maid discovered the body when she entered with breakfast for Miss Thompson, who suffered a heart attack here several weeks ago.

Miss Thompson, a newspaper columnist for 22 years, announced her retirement Aug. 19, 1958. Her decision to retire was based in part upon the death of her third husband, Maxim Kopf, a Czech painter. They had been married since 1943.

Miss Thompson first was married, in 1923, to Joseph Bard, a Hungarian. They were divorced in 1928.

The same year she married the novelist Sinclair Lewis. They had a son, Michael.

Man Dies, 4 Overcome in Hotel Blaze

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A two-alarm fire broke out in a downtown hotel before dawn today and took the life of a South Dakota truck driver whose body was found near a window.

The victim was identified from papers and the registration card as Jerome Attlewood, 27, of Mitchell, S.D., who had registered Monday night. He died of smoke inhalation and burns.

Authorities said the fire started in Attlewood's fifth-floor room. Battalion Fire Chief Charles Roth said the blaze was touched off by a discarded cigarette.

4 Men Overcome

Two firemen and two policemen were overcome in fighting the blaze in the Royal Hotel, two blocks from Wisconsin Avenue, the city's main street. Both policemen and one fireman were in fair condition in a hospital. The other fireman was treated at the scene.

About 60 guests were evacuated from the hotel after the first alarm was sounded at 3:18 a.m. The blaze was under control about a half hour later and by dawn the guests were being returned to their rooms.

The damage was confined to the top three floors of the eight-story brick structure. The loss was estimated by Roth at $40,000.

Ten Simple Steps Toward Better Study Habits Told

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D., With HARRY KARNES

Good work habits are essential if you want to make better grades.

When the manager of a factory wants to produce more goods and make more profits, he calls in an efficiency expert. The expert tells him how to rearrange his machinery and alter the habits of his workers so that the work can be done faster and with greater ease.

Second of Series

Many potentially brilliant students need a similar overhauling of their work habits. When they get it, their brilliance is uncovered.

It saves time and energy to know where and when you are going to work, how you are going to work and what you are going to work at.

Once you get in the habit of doing assignments according to a certain pattern, the task of getting down to work ceases to agonize you. It comes naturally and is, in fact, enjoyable.

You find, also, that you now have more time for other things.

Here are some suggestions that will help you do more efficient work:

1. Have a regular place of study in your home.

Make sure it has good lighting and is situated away from the TV set, the radio and the confusion of the rest of the house. You may not be able to avoid all noise and interruptions, but you should have a place that is relatively quiet and free of intrusions.

In this study nook, provide a place to put your books so you will always know where they are. You should not have to hunt through the house. The student who spends 10 or 15 minutes searching desperately under newspapers and behind divans for a textbook is not always in the best frame of mind for study when he finds it. A good student knows where his books are.

2. Set aside a regular time to study and a fairly regular amount of time to devote to it.

According to Dr. James Conant, the senior high school student preparing for college today should spend from 15 to 20 hours a week in study outside the classroom.

3. Always make sure you understand exactly what you are expected to do on assignments.

Ask the teacher questions until this is clear in your mind. Never leave subject matter to guess-work.

4. Keep a "Things-I-Have-to-Do" list.

Every time you are given an assignment, put it on the list and assign yourself a specific time at which to do it.

5. Do your work as soon as you can.

Even if you see an hour or a day in the future which you are sure will be free for study, try to do the work sooner. So often those future times you think you can depend on are suddenly wiped out by emergencies and unexpected events.

6. Allow yourself enough time for each assignment. But do not spend so much time on one assignment that others suffer.

7. When your mind begins to wander, quit working for five or 10 minutes.

Relax. These periodic work breaks bring you back to the job amazingly refreshed and ready to go on.

8. Do your own work.

After all, you — not Dad or Mom or the neighbor — are supposed to be getting the education. You won't have Dad's brain with you on exam day.

There is nothing wrong, of course, with asking for advice, equipment as pencils and paper, and examples. But the basic work should be your own. After getting first help from another person, test whether you can do the problem for yourself.

9. Use the dictionary. If you do not understand all the words used by the instructor or the author of your textbook, you will not understand all the lesson. You should be able to define the terms used. A dictionary should be as much a part of your equipment as pencils and paper. Study the hardest things first. This takes a great exertion of will. The temptation is great to take the line of least resistance and do the easy ones first. The trouble with that approach is that after your energy runs out, the hardest jobs remain. Hard chores never grow easier by aging. It makes sense to do the hardest work when you are fresh and

Opinion Split On Merits of Kennedy Talk

Delegation's Views Range From Superb To Self-Serving

BY FRANCES McKUSICK Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Members of the Wisconsin House delegation ranged in their descriptions of President Kennedy's State of the Union address today from "truly superb" to "completely self-serving."

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, most alert and can give it your longest, best attention. Remember the good advice of Thomas Huxley:

"Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is to make you do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not; it is the first lesson that ought to be learned."

TOMORROW: Better grades through better reading. (Copyright, 1961)

(D. Watertown) not only thought the president's speech was "truly superb" but also said it foreshadowed a "vigorous administration" which promised to pursue problems with action and a new approach.

"His speech covered the ground comprehensively and set the 'whole tone' for his legislative program," Kastenmeier said.

Rep. John W. Byrnes, Green Bay, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee criticized the president for giving what he called a "completely self-serving address depicting dangerous dragons at every corner with Mr. Kennedy in shining armour charging to our rescue."

Glowing Promises "The president should recognize that the problems of today are not going to be solved by voicing pessimism toward the present and glowing promises for the future," the congressman continued.

Commenting that he thought Kennedy gave a "splendid" inaugural address, Byrnes added that he believed the chief executive had "ruined" this first good impression by "returning to political oratory today."

"I had thought that political oratory had ended on election day," he concluded.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, (R., Marshfield,) also criticized the president for voicing "so much pessimism."

"I am afraid that this pessimistic attitude will tend to make people retrench rather than encourage an expanding economy," he said. "He gave an extensive shopping list for appropriations, but we will have to await his specifications bill granting funds for five Polaris weapons in addition to those scheduled by the Pentagon."

Laird also pointed out that Kennedy was not the first one to realize the value of the Polaris missile, emphasizing that the house last year adopted a ping list for appropriations, but Laird amendment to an appropriations bill granting funds for five Polaris weapons in addition to those scheduled by the Pentagon.

two American diplomats posted in Brazil, made the crossing in a motor whaleboat.

A Recife tug carried 61 newsmen to the area, but was requested by the navy to keep some distance away so as not to impede the navy's operations.

The U.S. destroyer Damato was also on hand and two others, the destroyers Wilson and Vogelgesang, were steaming to join forces with her and the Gearing.

From the Santa Maria, Galvao messaged a Brazilian friend that he hoped to enter Recife today.

The rebel leader's message was directed to Gov. Carlos Lacerda of a scheduled flight when Appleton Guanabara State who is in Brasilia, Brazil's new capital.

There President-elect Janio Quadros was taking over Brazil's government from the administration of President Juscelino Kubitschek, who had threatened to return the liner to its owners, the Portuguese Colonial Navigation Co.

Galvao's Message "I hope to enter Recife on the same solemn day that Brazil initiates a new era headed by your admirals and honored president (Quadros)," Galvao said.

Lacerda earlier told newsmen in Brasilia he expected Galvao would be given 24 hours to disembark the passengers, refuel and depart again for the high seas. If he seeks asylum, Lacerda said, it will be granted, but the ship probably would then be returned to its owners.

The Brazilian navy was under orders from the outgoing administration to seize the Santa Maria for return to Portugal and to intern Galvao and his 70-man band at least for questioning.

Meanwhile the liner Vera Cruz, a sister ship of the Santa Maria, decided to bypass Recife on her voyage back to Lisbon from Rio de Janeiro. It was announced the ship, carrying a security guard of Portuguese secret police, will head for Lisbon directly from Salvador, 400 miles down the coast from Recife.

Crippled Jet Liner Returns to Airport

ROME (AP)—A Dutch DC 8 jet airliner with 86 passengers aboard returned to Rome's Fiumicino Airport Monday night when it developed landing gear trouble shortly after leaving for Cairo. The passengers were shifted to another plane.

2 Cities Oppose Airline Request By Sheboygan

MANITOWOC (AP)—A request by the city of Sheboygan for scheduled service by North Central Airlines will be opposed by officials of Manitowoc, Two Rivers and Manitowoc County as well as the airline.

The local authorities voted Monday to oppose the request at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing at Sheboygan March 8. A North Central spokesman said at Minneapolis Monday night that the line also would oppose the request at the hearing, taking the position that it would lead to creation of too many stops in one area.

Sheboygan recently completed a new airport and petitioned the CAB for regular airline service.

Walter Koepke, mayor of Manitowoc, said assignment of a flight to Sheboygan might threaten Manitowoc's own airlines service, consisting of two flights daily each way. He said that Oshkosh lost a scheduled flight when Appleton was added to North Central's schedule.

Air Force Creating Command for Global Communications

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The Air Force is creating a new command to be responsible for its global communications.

Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, announced formation of the Air Force Communications Service Monday night and said it will go into operation July 1 with responsibilities formerly "divided among many Air Force commands and agencies."

At Washington, the Air Force said the new command will have headquarters at Scott Air Force Base, Ill.

White termed the current warning system against attack by jet planes "highly effective" and noted that "we also have the initial segment of a ballistic missile warning system in operation." However he warned, "we have a long way to go in completing a total system which will be both effective and reliable."

Students Stage Sit-in For State Recognition

ROME (AP)—Sixty students at Rome's Academy of Fine Arts barricaded themselves inside the institution Monday to back up demands for government recognition of the academy. Masons drilled a hole in a wall so that officials could drive the students out.

The academy, although state subsidized, is not recognized on a par with Italian universities. The students want recognition so they will be exempt from the draft and get regular state-issued diplomas.

"In the scale of the dangers that he sees hanging over America, apparently it does not have a foremost place," Der Tag said, but added that "we should not be unhappy about this because we know that our security is contained within the greater security of America."

Britain's conservative Daily Mail compared Kennedy to Sir Winston Churchill because both, the newspaper said, were not afraid to tell the people the truth. "America is on the move again," the Mail said. "There is a zing and zest in the air, a new atmosphere of confidence and strength."

No Moscow Comment The London Times called Kennedy's speech a "call to boldness" and urged Britons also to heed it.

The speech was "a bleakly honest rallying cry in an hour of danger," the Times said. No Moscow paper gave any reaction or comment to the speech, but the range of excerpts they published were remarkable. As expected, they included in detail the President's views on the internal U.S. situation, the dollar problem, the recession and school shortages, as well as his appeal to the Soviet Union for scientific cooperation in outer space.

They also included such items not normally found in Soviet papers as Kennedy's declaration that "we must never forget our hopes for the ultimate freedom and welfare of the Eastern European peoples" and his declaration that neither the Soviet Union nor Communist China has yielded their ambitions for world domination.

AP Chief of Bureau Preston Graves cabled from Moscow that such statements were likely to provoke strong reaction in Soviet circles.

Kennedy's words pleased officials in Japan, South Korea and Nationalist China. Dissent was strong from Japan's opposition So-

Toll Road Not Practical for State, Nelson Says

MADISON (AP)—Gov. Gaylord Nelson today announced that a State Highway Commission study shows there is no "practical potential" for toll road construction in Wisconsin.

Nelson, who asked the commission to investigate use of tollways for highway financing, said he was "now satisfied that this method is not practical."

In the report to the governor, Commission Chairman Harvey Grasse said one reason tollways would not be feasible is that the federal inter-state system is being constructed on the most heavily traveled roads.

The report said that for any tollway project there would be some relatively parallel state-maintained free road for use by traffic not choosing to use the tollway.

The commission also studied financing of toll roads by revenue bonds and public funds raised by taxes and concluded:

"There are no situations in Wisconsin where such nominal public financed support would make an otherwise impossible project practical."

The report said that legality and public acceptance of a procedure in which public highway funds would be used to build a part of a toll road have never been tested.

"There is no practical and reasonable potential for developing a tollway in Wisconsin either entirely or partially financed with revenue bonds," the report said.

cialists and the Communist press in Hong Kong.

Flexible Approach Communist China had no immediate comment.

The Japanese foreign ministry said the message showed a positive yet flexible approach to the goal of peaceful coexistence. Japanese businessmen believed it would relieve local fears of U.S. import restrictions.

Japan's minority Socialist leadership contended Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda should restudy his plan for doubling Japan's national income in 10 years because the plan is based on the U.S. economy and Kennedy said the United States faced an economic crisis. Socialist policy chief Tomomi Narita complained that Kennedy had plainly expressed a hostile attitude toward the Soviet Union and Communist China.

A source close to Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek said the speech "sweeps some of the fears among our people of an American retreat under the new administration."

South Korean leaders generally welcomed the message as indicative of a flexible and realistic administration.

Badgers Split On Rules Vote

O'Konski to be Only State GOP Member Approving

Post-Crescent News Service

WASHINGTON — Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, Mercer, will be the only Republican member of the Wisconsin House delegation today to vote for change in the membership of the House Rules Committee, an informal poll of the delegation disclosed today.

O'Konski said that 60 other Republicans would depart from recommendation of their policy committee, headed by Rep. John W. Byrnes, Green Bay, that the Rules Committee lineup be left in status quo. Both O'Konski and Byrnes agreed that O'Konski would be the only Republican from the Badger state to break ranks. (The Rules Committee change, which is backed by Speaker Sam Rayburn, (D-Tex.) allegedly would add membership, giving the Democrats the opportunity to place "liberals" on the committee. This would change the balance of power within the committee to give the Kennedy administration program the green light for floor consideration.

Bottled Up

"Under the present set-up, the committee, largely dominated by conservatives, and under the chairman of a conservative southerner, could keep the President's legislation bottled up," explained O'Konski.

"I think the President of the United States has the right to expect the House of Representatives to vote on his proposals, whether these proposals are subsequently approved or rejected."

All four Democrats from Wisconsin are expected to vote for the rules change, which means that if the proposal comes up today as is presently indicated, the state's five to five on the controversy.

Estonian Refugee to Graduate With Honors

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—When Russian troops entered her native Estonia in 1944, Maia Leetma, then a girl of 5, fled with her family to Augsburg, Germany.

Five years later the Leetmas came to the United States, first living in Seabrook Farms, N. J. and later in Fremont, Ohio. About the time she was graduated from high school in Fremont she became a United States citizen.

The pretty blonde coed, now 22, reaches another high point in her life today when Western Reserve University awards her a summa cum laude degree. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Leetma tops the 197 in the graduating class.

and those advocating the construction of a new joint airport for Winnebago and Outagamie counties west of Neenah in Winnebago county.

The governor also asked the state Aeronautics Commission, when he directed Carley to make the airport study, to delay the letting of contracts for the construction of improvements at the Oshkosh airport. The commission will probably act on bids for the construction of new control tower when it meets here on Feb. 10, and it has an opinion from the attorney general that it cannot legally delay such contract approval unreasonably.

Carley said that he will proceed with his own investigation, and the hearings, without regard to the Aeronautics Commission decision.

His report, he said, may be completed after the Oshkosh contracts are let and dim the prospects for ultimate approval of the joint airport.

The department head explained that he will try to analyze airport use and need prospects in the lower valley for the next 20 years.

Woman Killed in Car-Train Collision

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of a woman as a result of a car-train collision has raised Wisconsin's 1961 highway traffic toll to 62, compared with 58 on this date a year ago.

Sandra Hinz, 22, of rural Sheboygan, died late Monday about four hours after the automobile in which she was riding and a North Western Railway passenger train collided at a crossing two miles north of Sheboygan.

Mrs. Paul Hinz, Sandra's mother, was reported in fair condition at a Sheboygan hospital. Both women were pitched from their demolished car.

Youth Faces Life Sentence For Crime Spree

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A carpenter's helper faces a life term, plus 643 years in prison, after pleading guilty to 13 charges resulting from a summer crime spree.

James Edward Hill, 19, pleaded guilty Monday to crimes ranging from rape to theft of clothes and was sentenced to 641 years plus life. Friday he pleaded guilty to carrying a pistol and threatening a policeman and got two one-year sentences.

Hill dressed as a woman when he committed the crimes, he said. Hill was arrested Sept. 7 after he was wounded in a gun fight with police. He was dressed in a cocktail dress, high heels and beige gloves at the time.

District Judge Ed Duggan sentenced the ex-convict to six 99-year terms for two rapes, a robbery and three burglaries. He got a life term for another rape, 12 years for burglary and two 10-year terms for car theft and theft of clothes.

Youth Killed in Crash On Way to Traffic Court

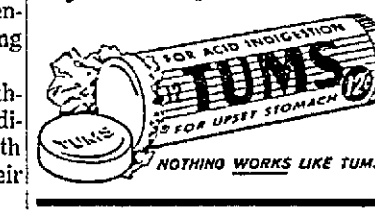

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Two high school boys were excused from classes Monday to attend a traffic court hearing. A few hours later one was dead and one hospitalized with critical injuries when their car crashed.

Lloyd R. Hogan, 16, died a few hours after the auto went out of control on a curve, hit an embankment and flipped on its top. Dn. Russell, 16, who police said was the driver, was critically injured.

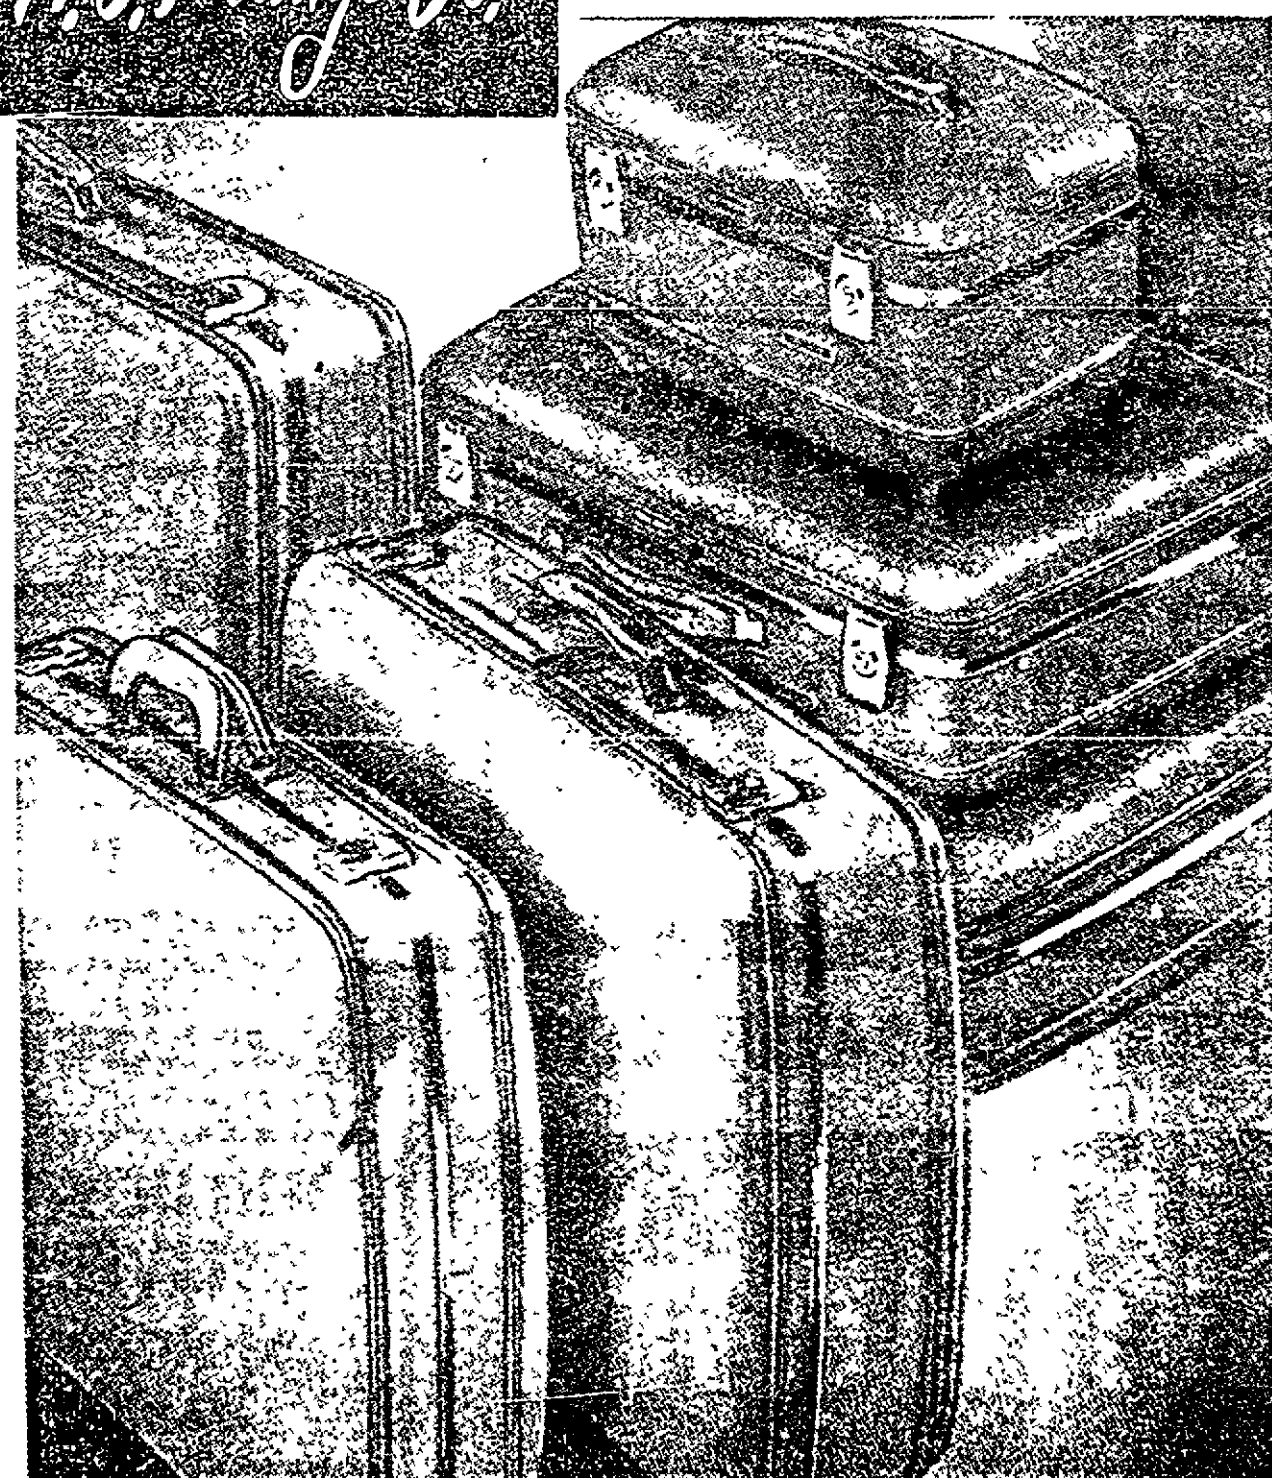

Police said Russell was to appear in court to answer a charge of making an improper turn and Hogan was to have been a witness.

Raps Proposal for Tax Distribution

Sturgeon Bay Mayor Asserts Plan Would Undermine Government

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The total redistribution of state-shared taxes according to the plan recently devised by Gov. Nelson's tax revision advisory commission would undermine local government operations, as opposed to the concept of uniformity, Greene declared.

"Out of the feeling that government should be tailored to its people rather than the people to their government, the state has established a unique pattern of home rule and local autonomy in which 80 per cent of governmental services are rendered at the local level where they can best be adapted to local needs and situations," a member of the study group, in a minority view filed as a part of the report of the advisory commission which reached desks of state legislators today.

The statement came from May- or Stanley R. Greene of Sturgeon Bay, a member of the study group, in a minority view filed as a part of the report of the advisory commission which reached desks of state legislators today.

May Endorse Plan
The main conclusions of the report had been published earlier. Gov. Nelson has indicated that he will probably endorse the plan for a new system of distributing taxes to localities, based upon their local economic capacity and other factors, among them local expenditure levels.

The principal tax distribution issue is the local government share of the income tax, corporate and individual, which is now paid out according to origin. Wisconsin has developed a wide diversity in its local government operations, as opposed to the concept of uniformity, Greene declared.

Space Chief Reflects Zeal for Organization

James Webb Described as 'Dynamic'; Served in State and Treasury Posts

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—James Webb, the new chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is an attorney with a penchant for planning and organization.

He goes at it with a pace that is breathtaking. "Very able and very dynamic," says Dean McGee, president of Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc., of his former assistant.

Webb, 54, a native of Granville County, North Carolina, joined Kerr-McGee as a director and assistant to the president in 1958. He has been responsible for planning and organization inside the firm which has holdings in oil and uranium.

Sen. Robert Kerr, D-Okla., is a partner in the Kerr-McGee firm and chairman of the Senate Space Committee.

Regleet Zeal
Webb's activities outside Kerr-McGee have reflected what McGee terms "a real zeal for training people for public service."

Webb was an organizer and trustee of the Frontiers of Science Foundation of Oklahoma—an organization to promote scientific study and research.

Since he moved to Washington a year ago, Webb has served as president of Educational Services, Inc., of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This organization promotes the study of physics.

As if these tasks wouldn't tie a man down, Webb has served as a director of the McDonnell Aircraft Co. of St. Louis and as a member of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's foreign aid advisory committee.

Webb claims no "great experience" in government. "I'm just a man who likes to get things done," he says.

Time for Action on Parking

It looks like action is going to replace talk in solving Appleton's downtown parking problems.

Mayor Clarence Mitchell formally presented his proposals to the council Dec. 21. Only 32 days later the public safety committee approved them. This is exceptionally fast work, considering the snail's pace which so many government actions take.

Even though the committee changed the order of priority in some instances, concrete action was taken.

Committeemen showed good judgment when they decided the first objective should be buying the property in the Packard-Division Streets ravine for use by all-day parkers at a nominal fee. This had been suggested earlier by Ald. Schneider. Downtown workers need a place to park, but not in prime areas of shopper traffic.

The committee was wise also in listing alternate sites for immediate ramping. Mayor Mitchell had proposed a specific site for ramping now, and two more in 1965. Committeemen lumped them together on an either-or basis. One or the other may be more suitable now.

It is no secret that there has been divided opinion among some of the aldermen, and even among some of the merchants, as to how this much-needed parking program should be financed. The mayor and the public safety committee have now swung behind the Chamber of Commerce proposal to "merchandise" parking in the city—that is, to charge higher rates for the most desirable parking spaces and keep the present low rate of 5 cents an hour (instituted when a nickel was worth twice what it is today) for spaces farther away from the prime shopping area.

We thoroughly agree with the mayor, the committee and the chamber on this. The "merchandising" of parking spaces is the trend today throughout the country, based on the simple proposition that more desirable parking space should carry a higher price for the same reason that more desirable merchandise costs more. The actual rates charged in any given city should be comparable with those charged in cities of similar size and circumstances, and especially those charged in nearby competitor cities. In the case of Appleton that means Green Bay, for during the last two decades Appleton and Green Bay have emerged as the principal retail centers of this part of Wisconsin, and constitute each other's only real competition. Green Bay recently has changed to a system of charging higher rates for its prime parking spaces, and thus Appleton would remain competitive under the current proposal.

We are aware that there are those who believe the merchants and other downtown property owners should contribute directly to the financing of new parking facilities (the fairest way would be through a special assessment system). We are prepared to support this view—but only when and if we reach a point where revenues from parking meters, competitively priced, are insufficient to do the job. In other words, we believe that first we should price our parking spaces sensibly and competitively, and use the resulting revenues to build as many new parking spaces as we can; when and if we need more parking space than such a system can provide, the downtown property owners should begin contributing through a special assessment system; and only as a last resort should we ever place the burden of providing parking facilities on the general taxpayer.

We hope the aldermen will support the present proposal, and act on it with as much dispatch as have the mayor and the public safety committee. Appleton has been dawdling too long on the parking problem; the time for action is now.

The Chicago Censorship Case

The United States Supreme Court at long last has made a decision about prior restraint of motion pictures through the device of requiring a permit for showing and advance reviewing by a commission or individual for issuance of the permit. Since the decision was 5-4, something of a tradition in the court in recent years, the matter obviously will come up again and may be decided in the other direction.

The immediate case was brought by a motion picture corporation. It concerned the requirement in Chicago for a film to be submitted to the Movie Censor Board of the Chicago Police Department for viewing before a permit will be granted. The moral value or lack of it in this particular film was not at stake since the company refused to submit the film and, upon being denied a permit, went to court stating that the restriction violated the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Tom Clark, says that "Chicago emphasizes here its duty to protect its people against the dangers of obscenity in the public exhibition of motion pictures. . . . It is not for this court to limit the state in its selection of the remedy it deems most effective to cope with such a problem." The decision stated that the court never had declared complete freedom of speech or expression and that constitutional protection does not include "complete and absolute freedom to exhibit, at least once, any and every kind of motion picture." It denied that criminal prosecution after a film had been publicly shown was necessarily enough of a protection.

The minority opinion, written by Chief Justice Warren, decried the "retreat" from the principles of free speech. "The court's opinion comes perilously close to holding that not only may motion pictures be censored but that a licensing scheme also may be applied to newspapers, books and periodicals, radio, television and public speeches and every other medium of expression. The court in no way explains why motion pictures should be treated differently than any other form of expression."

We are inclined to side with the court in the efforts of the majority to put various forms of control at the local level. As we have pointed out before, this happens in any community anyway regardless of legislation.

But the actions of most censorship boards have been appallingly inept. In the south, movies which even recognize integration as existing have been barred and those dealing with the problems of miscegenation are banned outright. The movies and books which local boards censor indicate that few people can agree as to what is pornographic and what is pictorial, what is smut and what is sex, what is dirty and what is realistic. The cheap thrillers and the works of literature which deal with an off-beat theme are lumped together with no real attempt at discrimination according to true value. The industry censors avoid the major issues by making definite cut-off limits, such as the number of inches of cleavage or the angle of a bedroom scene, neither of which may have anything to do with the aim or intent of the picture.

The ostrich approach often is used and as one speaker mildly told a COMBAT meeting several months ago, books that ignore the problems of "sex and alcohol" are hardly realistic. Perhaps the attitude of many censors is indicated by the statement of Sgt. Vincent Nolan, head of Chicago's Movie Censorship Board when he heard the Supreme Court decision. "Now we can continue to protect the morals of the public."

Although the particular movie in the case was not at issue, it was a clever choice by the motion picture company. It was Don Juan, a movie version of Mozart's famous if naughty opera, Don Giovanni.

If the movie can be banned, what about showing the opera itself in Chicago or selling recordings of the music? Obviously the situation has a ridiculous aspect but it is not farfetched. The French movie, The Lovers, which ran for months in New York, has been banned in Chicago as obscene and the ban has been upheld by a federal judge. The definition of obscenity here must be regarded as very fine.

The whole matter of censorship, smut and attitudes toward the problems is involved. Thus, Ballet Africains received a lot of publicity a year or so ago when New York officials ruled that the dancers, usually appearing naked from the waist up, had to wear brassieres. The smut here was in the eye of the observer, something which came to be realized in most of the cities where the Ballet has appeared. In our sex-centered society we seem to be getting to the point of being unable to acknowledge sex except in smutty overtones.

Undoubtedly the latest decision by the Supreme Court will not be the last on the subject. Every time a board bans a film, the case will be appealed, not on the right of the board to make a decision but on the validity of its decision. Since the Supreme Court has emphasized that portions of a book do not make it obscene and that sacrilege toward one particular religious group is not grounds enough for banning a film, there can be many degrees of decision.

And, since the court certainly is influenced by the temper of the times, as well as the background of its members, the next 5-4 split may be in exactly the other direction.

Support for the Space Program

During the recent campaign, President Kennedy stressed the point that we must be first in the race to put a man in space because, as he pointed out, "if the Soviets control space they can control earth."

If President Kennedy wants to put our man on the moon first, or if he wants to put him somewhere else in space, he will have plenty of support from the public for such a program, according to the latest findings by a Gallup poll. The poll discloses that about 40 per cent of the American public today believes that Russia will be the first to send a man into outer space. A year ago, 44 per cent held that opinion.

Thus there is an indication that America has made good gains in the past year sufficient, apparently, to change 4 per cent of public opinion. However, those who definitely believe that the United States will be first are only 35 per cent compared with 34 per cent a year ago. Those with no opinion increased from 22 per cent a year ago to 25 per cent today.

Since there is no doubt all Americans want their country to be first in this effort, indications from the poll are that there would be strong support for greater spending if that would advance our cause. Thus if Mr. Kennedy wants the United States to be first, and knows how to bring it about, there can be little doubt the public will go along with any reasonable proposal he may advance.

Wants Airport Near Freedom To Service Entire Fox Valley

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Twice in the past some error in judgment has been made in the selection of airport sites.

And it appears now that history is about to repeat itself in a third and similar error. When will those charged with the responsibility of selecting airport sites realize they should be placed at a reasonably safe distance from heavily populated districts (8-10 miles) and out of the natural growth areas of the cities served?

Let us hope the recent collision over New York and the more recent failure on take-off of a Mexican plane at New York bring home the danger of locating an airport too close to cities.

Oshkosh is already built in. So is the old Whiting port and the present Outagamie port. Neither are the presently proposed sites sufficiently removed from heavily populated areas.

One is already being planned for residential development. Brown net Winnebago is the county to approach for a joint port.

True Brown County already has a very substantial investment in a port which is well situated to serve Green Bay for years to come.

Naturally Brown County like Winnebago would hesitate to sacrifice on its initial investment. But over the long run Brown County interests would best be served by a joint port with Outagamie.

In the very near future the entire Fox River area from Green Bay to Neenah-Menasha inclusive will be the Los Angeles of Wisconsin.

With an airport north of Kaukauna in the Freedom area and served by Highway 41, all of these cities would be within a 30-mile drive.

It would also be out of the natural growth areas of these cities. Such a port would quickly become the No. 2 port in Wisconsin.

Furthermore, with the bottleneck which is developing at Chicago other air routes must be developed. With the addition of Alaska and the rapid development of the the Canadian Northwest one of the most likely new routes would be New York, Detroit, St. Paul-Minneapolis then west or north.

An airport at Freedom would be on such a route. These suggestions may appear visionary at the present time, but the trouble now and in the past has been the failure to look sufficiently far into the future. With the high cost of airport construction taxpayers are not going to take kindly to the construction of a new airport every 25 years.

Neither do we need airports of this type every 30 miles. Leave Oshkosh as a feeder port and then build an airport that can and will have a future.

Doesn't Like Fuss Over Old Tom Sampson

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Having never written a letter of praise or criticism I hardly know where to begin.

However, this latest publicity bit is just a bit nauseous. I am of course referring to the stories, build up and fund raising for "Old Tom Sampson."

"Knight of the Road," "World Traveler," call it what you like, by any name he is still a hobo, bum. . . . For 50 years he has shirked all responsibility, refused to work, and contributed nothing to no one. His reward for his carefree days of doing nothing is to have three men work for him to find him a home, so he'll have a year to do nothing in a little more comfort.

Now I personally know there are men at the jail under the Huber Law, deservedly so, no doubt, who are not working. They have families, children to support. These men made a mistake, are paying for it, and could use a little help. They don't want financial help. They want to work. But the powers that be, who will spend seven days a week finding a home for a bum, just don't seem to have time to look for a job for these men.

Well "Old Tom" has his home. Good, fine, terrific. Certainly the moral of this fine story is why the hell work. Lay around, see the country and when you get old enough so you don't have to work, someone will find you a home.

Crescent Offers History Lesson

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Feb. 2, 1861.

There have been 10 specific attempts to defy the authority of the Federal Government since the formation of the United States.

The first was a conspiracy of some of the officers of the Federal Army to consolidate the 13 States into one under the supreme power of Washington.

The second was in 1787, called Shay's Insurrection, in Massachusetts. The third was in 1794, popularly called the Whiskey Insurrection, in Pennsylvania.

The fourth instance was in 1814 by the Hartford Convention Federalists.

The fifth, on which occasion the different sections of the union came into collision, was in 1820 with the admission of Missouri into the Union.

The sixth was a collision between the Legislature of Georgia and the Federal Government over certain lands given by the latter to the Creek Indians. The seventh was in 1820 with the Cherokees in Georgia.

The eighth was the memorable Nullifying Ordinance of South Carolina in 1832.

The ninth was in 1842 and occurred in Rhode Island between the Suffrage Association and the State authorities.

The tenth was in 1860 on the part of the Mormons, who resisted the Federal authority.

Study Group Would Change Relief Setup

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — As good a sign as any of the indifference to the far-ranging tax revision proposals of the so-called "blue ribbon" commission is the utter silence that has greeted its revolutionary proposition to have the state take over the management and financing of the public relief programs handled by local governments.

This is a fundamental and radical proposal, in Wisconsin historical terms. Since the establishment of the commonwealth, Wisconsin has held to the idea of local control of public relief, and, to some considerable degree, local government financial responsibility for relief. The Wisconsin system of local relief direction represents a theory of public administration that goes all the way back to Elizabethan days in old England.

Now the study commission which has reported to Gov. Nelson comes up with the wholly original idea that the state should take over the relief business. Original because there has been no such proposal, by any taxpayer group, by any municipal or county government lobby, or by anybody else who has worked on the legislative sidelines trying to influence the course of legislative policy.

THE PROPOSITION It is a part of a blueprint for local property tax relief through the shaking up of the existing tax distribution formulas, and the enactment of higher state taxes—which also have been greeted with a suspicious quiet by the Wisconsin body politic and by the various pressure groups that might be thought to be involved.

This plan would relieve the local property tax base of the towns, cities, villages and counties of about $25,000,000 in cost a year at the present levels of disbursement for relief. The figure covers the cost of direct relief, so-called, which is wholly supported out of local tax budgets, and the counties' share of the relief administered categorically, such as old age assistance, aid to dependent children, et cetera.

Considered abstractly a case can be made for this transfer of control and financial responsibility to the state, as the state welfare department already has noted, perhaps a little too eagerly. It is clear that there will be a greater uniformity of standards if the state administers the relief outlays under a single policy. It would be hard for any reasonable man to argue that an indigent should have less public aid because he lives in one county or another. Yet that is one of the risks of the local government control system.

Such practical considerations aside, this proposition strikes at the heart of the home rule and local responsibility traditions of Wisconsin. If there was any suspicion that the measure was going to be seriously considered, the defenders of those traditions would be heard from. Their silence almost surely indicates that they don't take it seriously.

There also may be some slight economies through a centralized system of management — although there will be skepticism about that which this department tends to share.

MORE COST But it also can be forecast that such a system will cost more. Indeed, the welfare department in its cautiously favorable analysis of this measure already has admitted the virtual certainty of a higher total expenditure.

Whatever may be the merits of state administration, it is perfectly evident that the reason for the long survival of the local relief system was the conviction of legislators and the view of their constituents that a relief check issued in the neighborhood was likely to be considered more carefully than one written in the distant state capital. It can scarcely be argued that a relief check issued by a local officer, responsible to the opinions of his neighbors, will be more cautiously handled than one authorized by an enormous civil servant, far removed from electoral worries, in a remote statehouse office.

Such practical considerations aside, this proposition strikes at the heart of the home rule and local responsibility traditions of Wisconsin. If there was any suspicion that the measure was going to be seriously considered, the defenders of those traditions would be heard from. Their silence almost surely indicates that they don't take it seriously.

Now the study commission which has reported to Gov. Nelson comes up with the wholly original idea that the state should take over the relief business. Original because there has been no such proposal, by any taxpayer group, by any municipal or county government lobby, or by anybody else who has worked on the legislative sidelines trying to influence the course of legislative policy.

THE PROPOSITION It is a part of a blueprint for local property tax relief through the shaking up of the existing tax distribution formulas, and the enactment of higher state taxes—which also have been greeted with a suspicious quiet by the Wisconsin body politic and by the various pressure groups that might be thought to be involved.

This plan would relieve the local property tax base of the towns, cities, villages and counties of about $25,000,000 in cost a year at the present levels of disbursement for relief. The figure covers the cost of direct relief, so-called, which is wholly supported out of local tax budgets, and the counties' share of the relief administered categorically, such as old age assistance, aid to dependent children, et cetera.

Considered abstractly a case can be made for this transfer of control and financial responsibility to the state, as the state welfare department already has noted, perhaps a little too eagerly. It is clear that there will be a greater uniformity of standards if the state administers the relief outlays under a single policy. It would be hard for any reasonable man to argue that an indigent should have less public aid because he lives in one county or another. Yet that is one of the risks of the local government control system.

Glenn Ford Contract Actor For 22 Years

Last of Big Name Stars to Resist Going on His Own

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — His fellow stars have sometimes looked askance at Glenn Ford, the last of the big names to remain under studio contract.

Maybe they should change their attitudes. Glenn may not be earning their millions. But he gets the grade A star treatment, and he may last longer than most of the others.

Glenn has been under contract for 22 years, an amazing record considering his still-youngish looks. He started with Columbia, to whom he still owes one picture. In recent years, he has also been tied to MGM, and he has two more films to do for that studio.

May Sign Again
"And I might sign up again," said the actor. This would defy all the laws for stars dreamed up by the legal and agency minds of Beverly Hills. According to those geniuses of finance, stars are supposed to form their own companies, and most do.

He gets a share of the profits in his last film, "Cry For Happy," and he'll be partnered with Frank Capra in his next film, "Pocketful of Miracles." But with his current one, "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," as with all his others, he works on a straight salary. It's not a bad salary (est. $300,000), but Ford could write his

Film Business Looking Up, Studios Busy

TV Big Competitor, But Attitudes of People Changing

BY BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Things seem to be looking up in the movie business. Studio streets are busy. Sales executives are getting chipper again.

But the indications of prosperity are not merely in these intangible signs. You can also see it in the hard facts as reported in the trade press:

MGM stepping up production to a 13-year high, earnings highest in 12 years. . . 20th-Fox ahead of 1960 in top grossers. . . Paramount invests $21.4 million in nine pictures now shooting, $30 million in films in preparation. . .

Payrolls Up

Hollywood payrolls up from $149 to $153 average over previous year. . . Universal-International takes biggest stock jump in 1960. Hollywood studio shortage looms.

Producer chief Eric Johnston has cited a "pervasive optimism" in the film business. He predicted 170 films to be made here in 1961 vs. 120 in strike-torn 1960.

Perhaps the most authoritative sign comes from the U.S. Department of Commerce. It estimated American box office receipts for 1960 at $1.37 billion, 7.5 per cent better than 1959 and the highest figure since 1935. And the department estimated that 1961 receipts will be even higher.

Why is business better? I asked 20th-Fox production boss Bob Goldstein, whose studio is humming with its biggest activity in years.

"There's a new attitude in Hollywood," he said. "We have found out that we can get the people out of their homes — if we give them enough incentive. It's entirely up to us now. If we give them enough good attractions, we'll do business."

"We're competing in the open market for the entertainment dollar. Television is a big competitor. It was great for the man who works all day and likes nothing better than to take off his shoes and sit in front of the TV set."

Too Much Same
"But there's his wife to consider. She has been home all day and wants to get out. If we can give her enough ammunition to get her husband out of the easy chair, they'll go to the theater. Apparently we're doing just that."

Goldstein speculated that many Americans have grown disenchanted with the sameness of TV and are seeking more varied entertainment in theaters. Whatever the reason, Hollywood is enjoying a lift in morale that it hasn't known in years.

own ticket with any studio. So why does he like a contract deal?
"Because I work the way stars used to work in the good old days," he said. "I get the kind of treatment that stars go to court Capra in his next film, 'Pocketful of Miracles.' But with his current one, 'Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse,' as with all his others, he works on a straight salary. It's not a bad salary (est. $300,000), but Ford could write his

Mischa Elman Still Busy With Concerts at 70

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For 57 years violin virtuoso Mischa Elman has been playing concerts and now, at 70, he says he wants to forget his age and devote all his time to correcting his faults.

"I have no plans to retire," he told an interviewer yesterday. "Only young people want to retire. I have a European concert tour scheduled for September."

Elman says he still continues the daily practice sessions he has pursued since he was 5 years old. Among his views on the music world: "The well fed composers of today don't have the right to the shoulder chips worn by Beethoven and Mozart."

Elman says the violin used to be a singing instrument, "but too many artists today use it as a percussive instrument, perhaps because the music being written for it now also is percussive."

Tonight's Schedule:
Fond du Lac at Appleton.
Manitowoc at Oshkosh.

South at East.

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Appleton and Fond du Lac, who staged the most spectacular offensive show of the 1960-1 Fox River Valley Conference basketball season Dec. 9, are booked for a rematch at 8:15 p.m. today in the AHS gym.

The Terrors, who scored a last-minute, 75-74 win in Fond du Lac, bid for an encore triumph tonight. If they succeed, it will mark the eighth consecutive home-floor win for a Dick Emanuel-coached team over the Cards.

With Manitowoc enjoying the FRVC's biggest lead in nearly a decade—three games—attention is beginning to center on the battle for second place. AHS, the only remaining team with even a feeble hope of catching Manitowoc, is the current proprietor of second place. But five teams—including Fondy—are only one or two games behind the Terrors.

Ships Meet Oshkosh
Manitowoc's Ships play at Oshkosh tonight in quest of their ninth straight conference success.

Though the Ships could lose two of their remaining six contests and still capture a clear title, they have quite an incentive to remain unbeaten. They'll try to become the FRVC's first perfect-record cage team in 27 years.

Not since 1933-4, when Appleton High (paced by scoring champion Rollie Winter) won 10 out of 10, has a FRVC team gone undefeated in league play.

In the first 22 years of an 8-school FRVC (with each playing a 14-game schedule), no team has gone undefeated.

No team has had as good a record as 13-1 since the Myrlon Seims-coached Terrors of 1950-1.

The current race is in sharp contrast to recent donkeybrooks.

Don Hearden Scores 35 in Frosh Game

Kimberly's Don Hearden scored 35 points Monday night to lead the Whites to an 89-84 win over the Cardinals in a University of Wisconsin freshman intrasquad game.

Bob Butler of the Whites tallied 30 points. The Champaign, Ill., youth and Hearden had all but 10 of the Whites' 37 field goals. Dave Grams, Monroe, paced the losers with 20 points. Gene Englund, Oshkosh, added 18.

Voris Arrives, Starts To Learn About Bays

BY ART DALEY

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Dick Voris started to learn today about the Western Division champion Packers — and Green Bay.

The Bays' new chief personnel scout arrived here Monday. His big objectives right now are: (1) Absorbing the Packer system as set up by Coach-GM Vince Lombardi and (2) Finding a home for his family—wife and children Richard, Jr., 13, Susan, 11, and Ronald, 9.

Voris, 38, who resigned recently as head football coach at the University of Virginia, is no stranger to pro football. "I worked a year as line coach with the Rams (1954) and put in two other years with them on scouting. I understand the pro draft," Voris said. In Los Angeles, he worked with Eddie Kotal, (former Lawrence College great) who built up and operates the largest scouting system in pro football.

Didn't Bring Snow
The newcomer explained that he "didn't bring this snow with me from Virginia. He was acquainted with the Packer setup today by Verne Lewellen, administrative aide who has been handling the draft and most of the scouting since the death of Jack Vainisi last November, and Coaches Phil Bengtson, Norb Hecker, Bill Austin and Red Cochran. Lombardi is spending a few extra days in New York following the league meetings there last week.

Among the items of interest were several large maps of the United States, in which the coun-

Mike Lee, a Junior Guard, will see action for the Appleton High School basketball team tonight against Fond du Lac in the Terror gym.

MENASHA — The Menasha St. Mary High School basketball team will get an opportunity to redeem itself for a double setback last weekend when it meets Wausau Newman in the St. John Gymnasium at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The Zephyrs dropped a 48-38 decision to Stevens Point Pacelli and a 57-53 verdict to Wisconsin Rapids Assumption on their northern trip.

Wednesday's game looms as another rugged test since Newman is the only team to beat the Assumption Royals this season. The Wausau school turned the trick, 56-55, last week.

Ralph McClone plans light drills this week for his team which came back well after a dismal game Saturday evening. Assumption was pushed to the very end of Sunday's contest before an abundance of fouls decided the outcome. Gus Laemmrich is still bothered with a back ailment. Guard Tony Rechner came up with a sprained ankle last weekend but is expected to be ready for action against Newman, the third-place team in the Central Wisconsin Catholic Conference.

Jim Koerner, Laemmrich, Bill Becker, and Rechner seem to be certain starters at this point. The fifth man will probably be Bob Stumpf.

St. Mary Cage Tourney Will Start Thursday

Appleton St. Mary's eighth annual pre-leten grade school basketball tournament will begin Thursday night.

Sixteen teams from the Fox River Valley will compete in the meet, which ends Feb. 12. In Thursday's openers, Kaukauna St. Mary meets Appleton St. Therese (7 p.m.), and Freedom St. Nicholas plays Appleton Sacred Heart (8 p.m.).

Defending champion Neenah St. Margaret Mary makes its first start at 3 p.m. Saturday against Fond du Lac St. Louis.

Other teams entered are Kimberly Holy Name, Appleton St. Joseph, Fond du Lac St. Mary, Menasha St. Patrick, Kaukauna Holy Cross, Menasha St. John, Appleton St. Pius, Menasha St. Mary, Fond du Lac St. Patrick and host St. Mary.

Xavier's Zanzig Is Ineligible
Pete Zanzig, a regular guard for the Appleton Xavier High School basketball team, has been declared scholastically ineligible for the next six weeks. He will miss the remainder of the cage season.

Minnesota Backfield Coach Gets Post at George Washington
WASHINGTON — James V. Camp, backfield coach at the University of Minnesota—the nation's No. 1 team last season—was named head football coach at George Washington University Monday.

Camp, 36, is No. 1 aide to Murray Warmath at Minnesota. He will succeed Bill Elias, who resigned recently to become head coach at the University of Virginia.

MU Tries for Giant-Killer Role Again

Plays Host Tonight To Once-Beaten St. Bonaventure

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette's inexperienced but ambitious basketball Warriors try once again for the role of giant-killer tonight while playing host to once-beaten St. Bonaventure, the nation's No. 2 ranked team, at the Arena.

Although belted in outings against three other high-ranked teams—Bradley, Duke and Louisville—the Warriors have high hopes of upsetting the Bonnies, whose only loss in 15 games was an 84-82 decision to Ohio State, rated the best college squad in the country.

Marquette Coach Ed Hickey feels his charges can rebound on their home court after last Saturday's 84-68 defeat by third-ranked Bradley at Peoria, Ill., and "make St. Bonaventure realize that we're a pretty good team."

The Bonnies, who have a showdown with Bradley set for Thursday in New York, have played a much easier schedule than Marquette and can set their sights on tough opponents. However, they can not afford to look past sophomore-studded Marquette.

8-1 At Arena
Holder of a 9-6 record, the Warriors have lost only one of eight games at the Arena. The only defeat was at the hands of seventh-ranked Louisville.

The Warriors also will be out to avenge a 74-70 setback by St. Bonaventure at Buffalo, N.Y., last season. In that meeting, the Bonnies' Tom Stith proved the difference by tossing in 42 points.

Stith, described by Hickey as "one of the greatest scorers I've ever seen in college basketball," has averaged 30.5 per games with 457 points in 15 games this season. He ranks third in the nation, one notch lower than his 1959-60 finish when he trailed only Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson.

Marquette's answer to Stith is senior Don Kojis, who is averaging 22 points a game en route to setting several school career records. Kojis also is a tremendous rebounder with 256 grabs off the boards this year. The Bonnies' top rebounder is Fred Crawford, a 6-5 sophomore with 137 retrieves.

The tip off is set for 8 p.m. A crowd of some 9,000 is expected.

MADISON (AP) — Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 college basketball team, bombed Wisconsin with a fabulous shooting display in the early minutes and rolled to a 100-68 victory Monday night before a crowd of 13,472 at the UW Fieldhouse.

The unbeaten Buckeyes hit on 11 of their first 14 shots from the floor in streaking to their 20th straight victory over a two-year span. The defending national champions have won 15 in a row this season, including five in Big Ten competition.

The Badgers, who are 1-2 in conference play and 4-9 overall, were plagued by poor shooting both from the floor and from the free throw line. They connected on only 29 of 92 field goal attempts for a 31.5 per cent average and cashed in just 10 of 25 free throws. "It's a terrific disappointment," UW Coach John Erickson said. "I thought we could make a game of it."

Largest Home Crowd
Appearing before their largest home crowd since a turnout of 13,500 for an Illinois game Feb. 13, 1954, the Badgers managed to stay close for just a few fleeting moments. They trailed 7-6 after three minutes and 12-14 a short time later. Then the Buckeyes pulled away and turned the contest into a rout.

The Buckeyes used reserves for the last five minutes of the first half and left the floor at intermission with a commanding 51-26 advantage. Starters boosted the

Texans Acquire Randy Duncan For '61 Season

Packer 1958 Draft Pick Decides to Quit Canadian Club

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The signing of Randy Duncan, All America quarter back at Iowa in 1958, was announced today by the Dallas Texans of the American Football League.

Jack Steadman, Texans general manager, termed the signing of Duncan "a major step toward a championship season for Dallas in 1961."

Duncan joins Cotton Davidson and Hunter Enis on the Texas quarterbacking staff.

At Iowa in 1958, the 6-foot, 185-pound Duncan led his team to the Big Ten championship and to a 38-12 Rose Bowl victory over California.

The Green Bay Packers of the National Football League drafted Duncan first after the 1958 season, but he chose to play in Canada with the British Columbia Lions instead. He became a starter in his rookie season. He was with the Lions again last year, but, after a five-touchdown passing performance in the final game of the season, he announced that he would play football in the United States in 1961.

Gophers, Illinois Rally for Victories

Minnesota Jolts Indiana, 66-58; Illini Shade Spartans, 93-92

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — A tremendous job on Walt Bellamy, Indiana, one of the few teams to give a chance to halt Ohio State's rush towards a second straight Big Ten basketball title, fell to defeat Monday night while the Buckeyes rolled to another victory with ridiculous ease.

Indiana blew a halftime lead and lost at Minnesota, 66-58. Ohio State, using its regulars sparingly, crushed Wisconsin, 100-68, at Madison, and Illinois came from behind for a 93-92 triumph over hot-shooting Michigan State.

Indiana's first loss in three games left Ohio State the only undefeated team in Big Ten play. The Buckeyes, the nation's only major college team without a setback, have a 15-0 record and a string of 20 victories over a two-season span. OSU is 5-0 in the conference.

15 Points Minnesota's rapidly improving Gophers, who have won four of their last five Big Ten games, held Indiana star Walt Bellamy to 15 points with a collapsing defense. Trailing 37-33 at the half, Minnesota caught up quickly and finally went ahead to stay, 53-51, on Norm Grow's basket.

Minnesota Coach John Kundla called the outcome "the most gratifying victory in my two years at Minnesota. Tom McGrann, Dick Erickson and Jay Kessler did

Lakers Pocket Fourth in Row

Edge Detroit, 117-116, Near Runnerup Pistons

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — The Los Angeles Lakers, riding a four-game winning streak in the National Basketball Association, have their sights set on second place in the Western Division.

The Lakers edged Detroit 117-116 Monday night to move to within 1½ games of the runnerup Pistons. In the night's only other action, the Cincinnati Royals kept pace with Los Angeles by whipping the Boston Celtics 116-88. The Royals, fourth in the West, remained 1½ games behind the Lakers.

Los Angeles pulled out the verdict in the fourth period after squandering an 18-point lead. The Pistons, trailing at halftime 63-52, scored 13 straight points at the outset of the third quarter to take a 63-63 lead.

Elgin Baylor of the winners headed the scoring parade with 28 points and five other Lakers' players garnered 15 or more.

Jack Twyman clicked for 41 points and rookie Oscar Robertson, apparently recovered from a hip injury, added 32 in Cincinnati's romp over Boston's Eastern Division pace-setters.

'Truly Great Honor,' Murtaugh Says of Bucs' Pick as Team of Year

The Pirates, who won the National League pennant and then defeated the New York Yankees in the World Series, received 289 points in the voting. The Philadelphia Eagles, National Football League champions, placed second with 130 points. The U.S. Olympic team was third with 91 points. Murtaugh, the National League Manager of the Year, said he was thrilled at the Pirates' latest honor and added: "If I had voted, I would have had to cast my ballot for the Pirates, also."

Murtaugh said the reason for his vote would have been the late-inning rallies the Pirates staged to win many games which established them as a "truly remarkable ball club."

The smiling Irishman, who lives in Chester, Pa., near Philadelphia, said he was happy about the Eagles finishing second and also noted their come-from-behind finishes during the past season.

"I'm an Eagle fan," Murtaugh said. "It is amazing how the Each received eight votes.

of the conference. In three of the last four seasons, a 10-4 record took the top spot.

AHS goes into tonight's contest with an overall 8-4 record and a 3-2 standard at home. The Terrors, who have now lost twice in a row for the first time this season, have been in the thick of every game: the four losing margins have ranged from 1-5 points.

Fondy, after a thunderous 4-0 pre-conference start, has won only three of eight league games for an overall 7-5 record. The Cards' first three losses (to Oshkosh, AHS and Manti) were all exceedingly close. In their last two outings, they lost by 17 to Sheboygan North and by nine to Oshkosh.

Oshkosh's fast break attack scuttled Fondy's full-court press last Friday. Fred Russler, who scored 30 points for the Indians, held Fondy scoring ace Al Esther to nine points.

As a result, Esther dropped from second to third in the FRVC scoring derby. Esther has scored 147 points (an average of 18.4), compared with 169 for North's Charley Huijbregtse and 160 for Manti's Paul Meany.

Moves to Fifth

AHS' Pete Treiber moved up into fifth place with his 25-point burst against the Ships. He is averaging 16.6 in the conference. The Terrors' Dick Rankin ranks seventh in the league — with 16.0.

Appleton stands second in FRVC team scoring and is tied for second with North defensively. Fondy is fifth on the offense and last (with a 61.1 average) defensively.

Overall, AHS is scoring at a faster rate than it did last season (62.1 compared to 59.9) but is not quite as effective defensively (57.0 compared to 53.4).

In the first AHS-Fondy game, Rankin, Treiber and Marty Schults scored 20, 19 and 19, respectively, for the Terrors. Esther netted 22 for Fondy, with Jack Nussbaum adding 18.

In Fondy's most recent game, Nussbaum and another Elbert regular, Jcn Brown, did not start as Coach Rube Lautenschlager shook up his lineup. Bud Aspatore and Steve McConahey joined Esther. Ken Wilderman and Charley Bloedorn in the starting cast.

Red Hickey Will Try to Deal Dissatisfied Lineman, Henke

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The "That certainly is strong evidence that the paychecks for the San Francisco 49ers—president Vic Morabito—says: "It is regrettable that some players have not agreed with Red Hickey and his staff in their assessment of personnel."

Morabito issued his statement Monday after some veteran players had expressed dissatisfaction. Defensive lineman Ed Henke, for one, said he wanted to be traded. "Athletes sometimes are not fully prepared to be judged by their coaches," Morabito continued.

After his club won four of its final games of the 1960 National Football League season, Hickey was given a new three-year contract with a raise.

Wolf River Area Plans Hit Snags

Recreation Idea at Odds With Conservation Commission Ideals

MADISON—Is the historic and scenic Wolf River in north central Wisconsin the "sleeping giant" among the state's natural resources and recreational assets? The phrase has been used by champions of a stronger state waters management program in testimony before the state legislature.

The Wolf river Valley area would be a model region for the organization of a water conservancy district such as would be authorized on a multi-county basis under the new water resources bill now before the legislature and scheduled for further arguments at public hearing. According to Gordon Bubolz, Appleton, one of the leaders of the Wolf River Improvement Association and a chief backer of the new legislation, at least four and possibly more counties in the Wolf River Valley would act to set up such an independent water conservancy district if the enabling legislation is adopted.

Studied Resources

Bubolz served on a sub-committee of the 1959 legislative interim committee studying Wisconsin water resource problem which made a pilot study of the Wolf River Valley area, embracing the length of the water-course from its origin in Forest County to its juncture with Lake Winnebago many miles distant.

The sub-committee report, largely prepared by Bubolz and Prof. J. H. Beuscher of the University of Wisconsin Law School, hails the Wolf River as one of the most valuable of the undeveloped resources of the state. As the report pictures it, the Valley area can be the center of a huge recreational use industry in the future, with necessary preparations now.

The report envisions a series of pleasure drives, river access points, public parks, and river structures to control water levels, avoid floods and increase the recreational utility of the valley.

Present Problems

One of the present problems in the valley, it noted, is that there is either too much water or not enough. There is a difference of 10 feet in water levels between flood and low water conditions, the legislature was told.

The report also suggests flood plain zoning to control building in the danger areas. But all of such actions ought to be taken on a regional basis, it was said, as the report backed the idea of a new multi-county governmental unit that would have the necessary authority.

First hearings before the legislature on the new water legislation, however, showed clearly that the rosy promises of Wolf River Valley development possibilities will be under severe challenge by other conservation spokesmen.

Destroy Fishing

The state conservation department shudders at the idea of any impoundments of the Wolf, asserting that interruption of the natural flow will destroy the stream's fishery and other wildlife resources.

Some of the private organizations allied with the agency have also indicated they will declare war on any such plans for river obstructions.

Richard Steinbrink, Green Bay, of the Izaak Walton League, has declared flatly that the organization will fight to the utmost any proposals that will destroy the river's pike and sturgeon fishery. Their destruction will be assured by river dams, he said.

Steinbrink acknowledged that some river impoundments and similar developments might be of economic benefit to the immediate neighborhoods. But he warned that the state supreme court has ruled that the entire public has a legitimate interest in the preservation of natural stream conditions and that the League will assert its rights under the court's past rulings.

South won the first trick with the king of spades and counted his tricks: two spades and four diamonds. He needed three more tricks.

Which suit should he tackle first—clubs or hearts?

If he led a suit and lost to the ace, back would come a spade to knock out the ace. Then the opponents would be in position to take their other ace and the rest of the spades.

South saw that he'd be safe if he could "steal" a trick. For example, if he led the ten of clubs and won the trick, he could then switch to hearts to make sure of two hearts and a total of nine tricks. But it would be equally effective to steal a heart trick and then switch to clubs.

So South sat indecisively in his chair until the other three players threatened to get up and go to the movies.

Extra Card

The decisive factor is the extra card in hearts. At the second trick South should lead a low heart toward dummy.

If West has the ace of hearts...

happens to be the case), he cannot afford to play it—for then dummy could play low, and South would have three heart tricks. Once South is allowed to win a heart trick in dummy he can switch to clubs and make sure of nine tricks.

But what if East has the ace of hearts? He will capture dummy's queen of hearts, but then South still has the chance of a 3-3 heart break. His extra heart may still be decisive.

Correct defense will beat South if he leads a club at the second trick. West steps up with the ace of clubs and leads another spade. Now South has only 8 tricks.

Our Children

Students' Needs Demand Serviceable Schools

BY ANGELO PATRI.

Truly the grass looks greener on the other side of the fence. Here we are with some people looking enviously at Russian schools. I can't share their feeling for a second. There are things in our schools that can be improved and will be, some day. The beginner's classes should have the ablest teacher obtainable—never, never the beginning teacher. The junior high schools should be overhauled and provision made for experiences with work. There are signs that this is coming.

Tells Experience

A young man told me about his experience. He was drafted along with the rest for the war. One day somebody learned that he could weld. He was sent for and the officer said, "Can you do welding?" "Yes sir." "Where did you learn?" "Our teacher organized a group of us and after school we went to a garage and worked on the wrecked cars he managed to bring there for us." "Not in a school then?" "No sir. Not in the school." "Well, report to the shop over there. Show what you can do." "After that I welded. I surely did. But I was glad I could help when my help was needed. I don't weld for my living. I'm an insurance lawyer but what I wanted to tell you is that you're dead right about boys and girls in junior high having work.

Improvised

Although this particular school, and many others, was unable to provide opportunities for these young searchers for life experiences, somehow they managed to get them through the school. Somehow the product of the American schools rose to an emergency with intelligence and ability. They used what they knew and they improvised when they lacked material and experience. That is where the Russians are inferior to our young men and women. They must wait on orders from on high, never acting on their own. That can be most inconvenient at the moment of emergency.

That does not say we should be content with the schools as they are. We can and we must make them more serviceable to our youth and childhood learners.

Gloves for All Occasions

There'll be a glove for every sleeve length this year and for every type of wrist. Glamour's "Fashion Dictionary" says brief, 1-button gloves go with long or no sleeves. With three-quarter sleeves, choose medium-length gloves or long ones, worn crushed down. Short sleeves also look best with brief, to-the-wristbone gloves. Glamour predicts the pale glove, in shades of cream to mist-grey, will supersede time-honored white, except when white is otherwise a costume accent. Caution note: too-brief gloves look wrong on too-thin arms, or otherwise. Choose medium lengths sometimes tucked under.

PET DOCTOR

Q. Do most dogs sneeze when in a happy mood? Lyn Rozz, Neenah, Wis.

A. The dog's pleasant excitement at seeing you or some other friend will often cause a physical reaction. In dogs, as in people, enjoyment brings a flow of tears which run through the lacrimal duct into the nose. You have probably noticed that most people blow their noses after being subject to great emotion. Well, the dog, for want of a handkerchief, sneezes. His sneezing clears his nasal passages and stimulates his brain. I have observed this tendency in dogs of every breed, but the wire-haired terriers and other highly emotional breeds seem more susceptible. So, if your dog sneezes with happiness, don't worry. She's enjoying life.

Prepare Ahead For Big Rush

Among "100 Sure Fire Grooming Tips" is the comment, "Most badly groomed people always have something on their think they can get away with one more time. They can't." For the woman on the go — and who isn't? — it is suggested you keep "one or two reliable party outfits ready for spur-of-the-minute invitations. Examples — a covered up black dress in crepe or matte jersey and accessories; or slightly bare black dress in chiffon, lace or crepe. For both outfits — kid gloves, small handbag, suede or patent shoes, suitable wrap, a veiling arrangement or small hat."

Appleton Gallery of Arts members planning the first mid-winter exhibit Feb. 19 through 26 met recently at Castle Hall to determine the space needed to exhibit the works. A Lovelier You By Mary Sue Miller

Lather Up for Loveliness

A lovely asks: Does soap dry the complexion? Some say yes, some say no.

The answer: A famous dermatologist has said, "If soap-and-water did not exist, I would have to invent it."

He would have, too. For cleanliness is basic to clear skin, and soap is basic to cleanliness. If soap seems to dry or irritate your face, you either use the wrong soap or improper washing techniques.

The following rundown of various types of soap will guide you to smart selection. Superfatted and cold cream soaps actually pamper dry and normal skins. For oily and blemished complexions, help is found in medicated bars. Allergy problems are solved by non-allergic soaps.

It is the rare skin, indeed, that cannot tolerate any sort of soap. And science has come up with an answer to that in the form of liquid face washes. Some are moisturized and contain the pH factor; others are medicated.

The efficiency of any kind of suds, however, depends on how expertly it is applied. You must work up a good lather and massage it into the skin with a feather touch. Rinsing just cannot be too thorough. It is best accomplished by repeatedly cupping water into your hands and splashing it on.

How often you wash depends on your skin. Once daily is the minimum.

Masonic Order Meets Wednesday

Put aside your grooming doubts and worries! Send today for "Your Grooming—A to Z," a booklet that covers every step in achieving smooth looks. It tells how to manicure and pedicure, use deodorants and depilatories, bathe for beauty, tend feet, hands, teeth and eyes, polish skin and hair, care for clothes, apply perfume, overcome personal poses. To obtain this copy, write me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

Your Problems

Gal Who Learned Answers Gives Others the Word

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please send me a membership blank for your "Old-Too-Soon, Smart-Too-Late Club."

Here is my story and I hope you'll print it because if I had read such a letter eight years ago I wouldn't be writing to you now.

I started to go with a man who was married. He told me his wife was cold and she didn't understand him. He said I was the kind of woman he'd been looking for all his life. He begged me to wait until he could "work something out."

After three years of waiting I gave him an ultimatum. He promised he'd break the news to his wife as soon as he could put the house in shape to sell. It took over a year to get the place painted, reshingled, landscaped and a patio added.

Then he pleaded with me to wait until his daughter graduated from high school. Another two years passed. After that his son became engaged, so naturally we had to wait until he was married. Another year shot. Then the daughter became engaged and we had to wait seven months for her to get married.

That wedding was last month. Now he tells me his wife is going through the menopause and she's afraid to tell her because she's very nervous and the shock may be too much. When I told him that some women drag on with the change for 10 years he shrugged his shoulders and said "I just can't do this to her now."

Don't bother to give me any advice, Ann — right now I'm the world's best authority on this subject. In fact I can probably give you a few pointers to pass on to other jacksasses like myself. Thanks for letting me unload. It's been a relief to get it down on paper. —Deserved What I Got

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm going with a great guy who is 22 and has loads of qualities which I admire. His one big fault is that he doesn't have a car.

I know he makes $88 a week but he has to help out at home and he's also putting himself through night college. We always double-date or take a bus and I just hate it. It's terribly inconvenient to go with another couple all the time as we have to make our plans fit in with theirs.

and it's a drag. Will you please give him a hint? — Sue Z.Q.

Dear Sue: He doesn't need a hint. He needs money. If the fellow is as good as he sounds, consider yourself lucky to go with him on foot, by over-cast or pogo-stick. It's the man that counts. Four wheels don't mean a thing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm confused. You said in a recent column that you can't understand why a girl would want to keep an engagement ring that symbolizes a shattered romance.

I'm not a grasping female. In fact I returned an engagement ring just last week, but why would the fellow accept the ring? Mine did and I was surprised. Surely if he becomes engaged again he wouldn't give the same ring to a new fiancée, would he? — Still Puzzled

Dear Still: Probably not. But he could have it reset or take it back to the store and get a refund. The girl who breaks an engagement should insist that he take the ring back as a matter of integrity.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THEATER PARTY PROBLEM

A strange situation arose at the theater the other night. Please tell me if my analysis is incorrect. Some very close friends invited my husband and me to the theater and there were six in the party. By agreement, we met in the lobby where we were handed our two tickets in the balcony. My husband had a severe coronary thrombosis six months ago and had to climb the stairs to our seats. Our host and hostess had orchestra seats. With them were their 20-year-old son and a woman guest who is probably in her forties. To me, this arrangement seemed thoughtless. Before the curtain went up, the hostess suggested that we meet in the foyer during the intermission, but I told her that it wouldn't be advisable for my husband to climb the stairs twice in one evening because of his heart. Even with this remark, there was no change in the seating. What is your opinion?

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS:
From the information you have given, I can't see that your analysis is incorrect. Knowing of your husband's condition, I can't understand why he was sent to the balcony. As a thoughtful host and hostess, I think that the young man and his father should have taken the balcony seats even though your husband had been hale and hearty.

RELATIONSHIP
What relation am I to the children of my mother's cousin?
LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS:
You are a first cousin, once removed.

Prevent Deposit Of Soot

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

OIL BURNER DEVELOPING SOOT DEPOSIT

Question: Our oil burner has begun to deposit a film of soot on the boiler and inside the cabinet. How can this be prevented?

Answer: Highly recommend having a service man inspect and make prompt adjustments, if necessary. The proportion of oil and air used may be faulty, or there may be a mechanical fault, or the oil supply line may be impeded in some way.

COLORING FLOOR REGISTERS

Question: We are having a light colored tile floor put down in our dining room. There are black metal heat registers in the floor. Can these be painted to match?

Answer: Yes; use any top quality flat wall paint or radiator enamel.

MARBLE CARE LEAFLET

Question: Where can I get a leaflet on the care and cleaning of marble?

Answer: A leaflet on the care and cleaning of marble is available for 10 cents from Marble Institute of America, 32 S. Fifth Ave., Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

Wiley Outlines Program to Help Economy

Includes Giving Government Work To Hard Hit Areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., today outlined a five-point program to "halt the economic downturns" in Wisconsin "and bolster the over-all economy."

"In Wisconsin, as across the nation, the economy is suffering from serious economic problems, some transitory and some of a chronic nature," the state's Republican senior senator said.

"Unfortunately, this is having a seriously adverse effect on our people and their progress."

List Proposals
Wiley said he was proposing:

"A survey of unemployment by the Labor Department to single out the communities of greatest unemployment."

"A special study by the Area Development Division of the Department of Commerce to find ways and means by which hard-hit communities can take immediate, and long-range measures to bolster their economy."

"Channel government contracts, as available, to hard hit communities."

"Provide communities with available technical assistance and guidance through federal agencies to help them help themselves."

"Encourage 'boot strap' self-help efforts by communities wherever possible."

Wiley said he had urged appropriate federal agencies to give maximum assistance to those affected and to cooperate with state agencies. He said he has asked the Department of Defense, in its purchase of supplies and equipment, to give high priority to concerns in labor surplus areas such as La Crosse in Wisconsin.

"We must be extremely careful," Wiley said, "not to get 'recession jitters' and—by undermining public confidence—talk ourselves into a real depression. However, we can—and must—take necessary steps to remedy the situation in areas now suffering from too much unemployment and business and industrial slow-downs."

Tribe May Abandon Power Distribution

Might be More Profitable to Sell Utility System, Buy It Elsewhere

KESHENA — The possibility of abandoning the private power distribution enterprise of the Menominee Indian tribe and the sale of its utility property to a private firm has been suggested to members of the tribe by one of its leaders.

The idea was advanced in a report to the Indian community by George W. Kenote, coordinator for the tribal council which is now preparing for the termination of federal government control of the reservation and its residents and an independent existence starting next year.

Increase Rates
Kenote said the rates charged by the Indian-owned utility will have to be increased if the tribe continues to operate it because there are capital needs that have to be met. One engineering study submitted to the tribe says that it would be more profitable for the Indians to sell the utility system and buy power from existing companies already franchised to serve the areas neighboring the reservation. He said more study will be needed before a decision is made.

Kenote also told the tribal members that the community must ultimately decide whether to sell or continue to operate the reservation telephone system, and reported that the water and sewage systems will probably require some improvements to meet state code requirements after the Indians constitute a separate political community. He suggested that the utilities be operated by the town government that will begin functioning next year under the termination law.

A building to house the prospective town and county government offices of Menominee County must also be selected. The state industrial commission has inspected several eligible structures at Keshena, the tribal leader said, and funds are available to remodel one of them to make it suitable as a joint town-county center.

Doctor Discredits Menopause As Causing Woman's Problem

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have never written before for advice, but finally at 40 I find something I can't seem to cope with."

"Perhaps you can help me and others concerning a phase of menopause. 'It seems that I imagine my poor husband is looking at or smiling at every attractive woman we see. I don't even like for him to look at these 'nudes' on TV. 'I get so disgusted with myself, as I have no reason to mistrust him in any way, and I know it must be hard on him, even if I don't say anything. I try not to show my feelings but he can sense them. 'I'm slim and attractive and just as interested in sex as I was at 20, if not more so. Can you tell me what is causing me to act this way? I have heard friends say the same of their husbands, and I know there is nothing to it. I'll be watching your column. — Mrs. J.G."

Not Menopause
I don't know whether this is a "medical" problem, but I guess you can fairly call it one of health.

I don't agree that it is a "phase of menopause" either. It doesn't have anything to do with menopause except that it arrives along about the same time. (An even 40 is a shade early for menopause, but that, too, is beside the point.)

There's no reason why women of 40 (or 50, or older) can't remain as much in love as they were at 20. Maybe they can't stay up till all hours looking at the moon and still be fresh as daisies at dawn — but the love is deeper and more mature.

The happiest wives I've seen are the ones who either say or imply — or anyway feel — "I'd think there was something wrong with you if you thought you were too old to LOOK!"

Unhappiest Wives
The word "look" is with the same intonation used with Junior in the toy store when you say, "You can LOOK all you want — but don't start playing with the toys!"

And the unhappiest wives are the ones who, because their husbands obey the natural male instinct to look at a pretty woman, begin making life miserable for the poor fellow, until he finally decides that as long as he's

Contradictions Seen in State Of Union Talk

Utopia Near if World Conforms to Kennedy's Ideas

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — If the aspirations of President John F. Kennedy, as revealed in his "state of the union" address to Congress, could ever be fulfilled, he would be the greatest chief executive in our history.

If the rest of the world heeded his plea to reform themselves and shape their policies to conform to President Kennedy's ideas, especially in the use of our funds, Utopia would be just around the corner. In fact, the president's cordial invitation to the Russians to join us on a trip to Venus and Mars wouldn't seem so unreal either.

For, on international policy, it was a splendid message — in keeping with the ideals set forth time and again by President Eisenhower.

On domestic policy, the speech was a series of contradictions between hope and reality, between theory and practicality.

While painting a gloomy picture of the internal economy of the United States and presenting a fine analysis of the gold problem — on which, incidentally, his views are "sound as a dollar" — there wasn't a single sentence that explained the causes of the so-called "recession."

'Indict The Past'
Kennedy professed not to "indict the past," but he proceeded nevertheless to do just that. He spoke of "seven years of diminished economic growth," though the figures show that the "gross national product" has increased every year in that period. Later on, the president qualified his verdict somewhat by saying that after 1958 "our gross national product never regained its full potential."

There were few details as to what the new administration intends to do about all the ills which it says are present in our domestic structures at Keshena, the tribal leader said, and funds are available to remodel one of them to make it suitable as a joint town-county center.

Physical Fitness Vital to Nation, Kennedy Thinks

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy today described physical fitness as a part of our national survival and said he would do his best as President to emphasize this.

"Our society is quite sophisticated and we are in a very dangerous period of our world history," Kennedy said. "We have unending programs as Kennedy mentioned, or how the cost of living will be kept down. For the truth is Kennedy didn't say a word about the state of economic anarchy which has swept America — the assertion of economic power by irresponsible groups."

The domestic part of the president's address was plainly political and partisan. It raised high hopes and talked optimistically of desired reforms. But how can they really be achieved? Kennedy spoke two sentences in his address that will puzzle Americans: "Before my term has ended, we shall have to test anew whether a nation organized and governed such as ours can endure. The outcome is by no means certain."

Did the president mean that a controlled economy would have to be imposed from the top? Did he mean that, in the present state of conflicting forces, the groups with the largest vote-getting power are to be heeded, irrespective of the merit of their demands? How can any pressure group be made aware of its responsibility to the nation if the president himself in his message to Congress completely ignores the responsibility of such groups which have brought on the present recession and could conceivably make it worse?

Military Side
On the military side, the president's proposals will be welcomed as a sound policy of protection. As to the words addressed to foreign nations, Kennedy's advisers gave him the right counsel. He does not minimize the communist threat. Indeed, he pointedly drew attention, for instance, to Latin America as an area in which "communist agents seeking to exploit that region's peaceful revolution of hope have established a base on Cuba, only 90 miles from our shores." Kennedy declared flatly, amid applause, that "communist domination in this hemisphere can never be negotiated."

Most important in the whole address was the following succinctly worded statement: "The first great obstacle is still our relations with the Soviet Union and communist China. We must never be lulled into believing that either power has yielded its ambitions for world domination — ambitions which they forcefully restated only a short time ago. On the contrary, our task is to convince them that aggression and subversion will not be profitable routes to pursue these ends."

This utterance transcends all others in the address and, if pursued by Kennedy's cabinet and other advisers, it will go a long way toward removing fears that the new administration will try to appease our potential enemy.

Riverboat Captains Fight Ice in Water

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — Stubborn riverboat captains continued a battle against the ice-choked Mississippi in this area today but many towboats dropped anchor here to await a thaw.

C. W. Rushing of the Missouri Barge Lines said "we need 50 degree temperatures and a rain to break the gorges" and open the river to normal traffic.

There were three large ice jams in the river. Two were five miles long and one eight. One was about seven miles above the confluence of the Mississippi and the ice-clogged Ohio River at Cairo; one about 20 miles above the confluence and the third another 10 miles north.

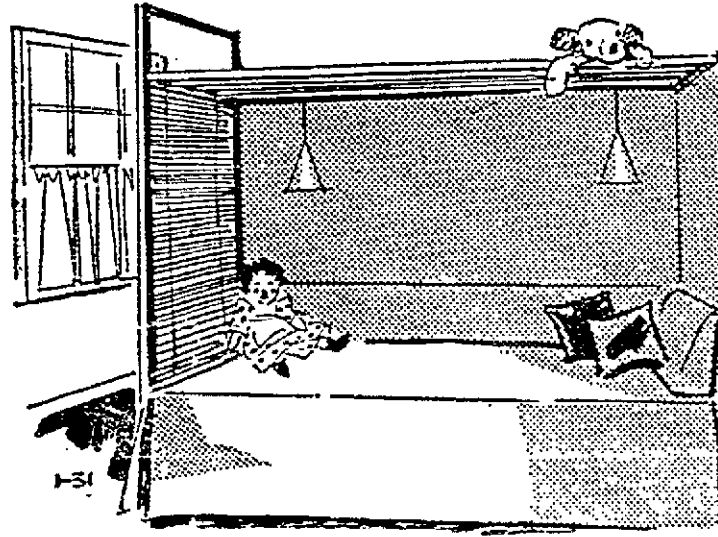

ing that either power has yielded its ambitions for world domination — ambitions which they forcefully restated only a short time ago. On the contrary, our task is to convince them that aggression and subversion will not be profitable routes to pursue these ends."

This utterance transcends all others in the address and, if pursued by Kennedy's cabinet and other advisers, it will go a long way toward removing fears that the new administration will try to appease our potential enemy.

AFL-CIO Speaker Urges Newspaper For Labor Unions

Delegates Approve Committee For Construction of Temple

NEENAH — If an enlightened labor union movement is to be realized in the Twin Cities and Appleton, a local labor-oriented newspaper must be published. Ted James, director of the Wisconsin State Committee on Political Education (COPE), AFL-CIO, declared at the annual conference of the Neenah-Menasha Labor Council.

The labor newspaper would be printed by and for union men to give all locals in the Neenah-Menasha-Appleton area their own information medium.

Nearly 100 delegates and officers from 40 local unions attended the conference, at Lake Road Lanes, Neenah. A dinner was held after the talks.

Delegates also approved appointment of a ways and means committee to aim at construction of a Twin Cities Labor Temple. Delegates agreed that organized labor in the Twin Cities should and can have its own building.

Delegates voted unanimously to urge all union members to discontinue giving in their 3-year pledges to the Theda Clark Memorial Hospital addition building fund if contracts should be awarded for non-union labor and materials. They urged union contractors be hired for the job.

(No contracts have been awarded. Bids are being tabulated by the hospital's architect.)

James, discussing the role of COPE, urged union members to keep themselves fully informed of the records of all political candidates, from city to national level. He said the Wisconsin COPE organization has 16 directors who screened all state candidates for the AFL-CIO before giving or withholding endorsement.

Also speaking was Charles Heymanns, director of Region 12 of the AFL-CIO, who outlined the history of central labor organizations with particular emphasis on strong organizations, which can have their own members appointed to active roles in local government, civic and community affairs.

The delegates also voted to hold conferences more often than annually. No number was specified.

Trail in Snow Leads Police To Theft of Truck, Breakin

Appleton detectives last night followed a trail through fresh fallen snow that led them to a stolen truck and a break-in at the Gibson Chevrolet Co. lot at 935 Wisconsin Ave.

The trail was picked up by a patrolman and was followed backward to uncover the burglary and theft of a truck.

The patrolman noticed tracks around parked cars in the parking lot at Soldiers Square about 3 a.m. today. The tracks were followed to the YMCA. Further investigation showed similar tracks around parked cars at the Gibson lot at Lawrence and Superior Streets.

Police found one used car with the key in the ignition which apparently had been moved a short distance. Detectives said this is what happened:

The thief broke into the Gibson lot on Wisconsin Avenue and stole the keys to about 35 used cars. He also took a panel truck owned by Gibson and drove it to near Eighth and Elm Streets. The truck was found there with the front end damaged. He then apparently went to the Lawrence Street Gibson lot a few blocks away and tried to take the auto, which was moved.

The investigation is continuing.

No Bonus Pay For Appleton City Workers

Bonus pay or time off for all Appleton city employees who worked the Friday afternoon before Christmas was denied by the council's finance committee last night.

The committee acted on a resolution submitted by Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings, who felt all employees should be given the same consideration as street and sanitation workers. Men in those departments got three hours off that Friday afternoon.

Last week the public safety committee refused to give bonus pay or time off to men in departments over which it has jurisdiction.

The recommendations of both committees will come up for council action Wednesday night.

Three pay hikes were approved. School crossing guards will go from $1.35 to $1.45 an hour. Part-time clerical help in all city departments will get $1.45 instead of $1.25. Bernard Bohm, parking meter department coin volunteer, will get a 10-cent an hour raise.

Asks Policy Review On Snow Removal

Street and Sanitation Committee Action Prompted by Ald. Groh's Resolutions Questioning Fairness

A complete review of Appleton's snow removal policy and assessment charges to haul snow away is being requested by the street and sanitation committee.

Questions the committee wants answered are these:

Should property owners in residential zones be charged? Should a differential rate be set up for residential and business zones? Should property zoned commercial but used residential be charged? Or should the city absorb the entire cost of snow removal?

The policy review and questions arose because of two resolutions by Ald. R. P. Groh. One asked cancellation of assessments against residential property where owners had not requested snow removal. The other asked revision of snow removal policy in residential areas.

Groh

Ald. Al Stoegebauer has recommended no assessment for property owners on W. Franklin Street, between Richmond and State Streets.

As the city's policy now stands property owners in business districts are assessed from 10 to 50 cents a front foot for the season. Any residences along the streets are assessed the same.

Ald. Groh's opinion is that residential property gets no benefit from snow removal and shouldn't be assessed, particularly when removal is not requested.

If the city wants to remove snow to make traffic movement easier in winter and help parkers get to the meters easily, then the city is the beneficiary and should bear the cost, he says.

He cited an example of double hardship on property owners on the south side of Lawrence Street in a residential zone. There are parking meters in front of homes so that residents cannot park in front of their own houses, and in winter they are assessed for snow removal.

Removal Costs. The city collects about $30,000 in special assessments for snow removal, about half of what it actually costs during a normal winter, the department of public works reports. Actual cost for any one winter depends on how many times street crews have to haul snow away. Crews usually work at night and get time and a half pay.

It was suggested rates be determined according to zoning and use, as is done for street work assessments.

One committeeman said the city

Would Change Procedure for Annexations

NEENAH — Legislation affecting municipalities was reviewed at Madison Monday by Mayor Chester S. Bell and other members of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities Legislation Committee.

Mayor Bell said the committee voted to give strong support to a bill amending the current annexation law.

The amendment would create an alternate method of annexation in which a city council could declare its intention to annex a contiguous, unincorporated territory by adopting and publishing a resolution to this effect.

The resolution would be served on the town board and filed with the state director of planning who would then call a hearing.

If the proposed annexation is found to be in the public interest, the city council then can pass an annexation ordinance which becomes effective without a referendum.

Juvenile Cases Start in Home

Judge Arnold Cane Traces Problem to 'Love Starvation'

NEENAH — Almost all juvenile cases can be traced to something in the home, Arnold J. Cane, Winnebago County Juvenile Court Judge, told the Neenah Club Monday noon.

All offenders have one thing in common, he said, "They are starved for love."

Judge Cane explained the history and setup of the juvenile court. Handling of juveniles separately from adults is relatively new, he said. The first juvenile court was organized in 1899 in Cook County, Ill. Wisconsin's juvenile court system was begun two years later.

Danger Signal

"Something has happened to the child even before he or she committed the act," Judge Cane said. A poor home life, disinterest in school, and unorganized free time are all causes, he said.

"When children start doing very poorly in school, that is a danger signal," he added.

A juvenile hearing may be very informal, he said, and may be only a conference with the child and his or her parents. The final resort is commitment to an institution.

Reynolds Against Delaying Control Tower Construction

Bids Cannot be Rejected Because Port May be Wrong Site, He Says

Reprinted from Monday's Edition.

OSHKOSH—Construction of the flight control tower at the Winnebago County Airport here cannot be delayed because it might be at the wrong site, Atty. Gen John W. Reynolds has advised the State Aeronautics Commission.

A copy of the opinion has been received by Joseph Drexler, Winnebago County Board chairman.

Basic points in the attorney general's formal opinion, which backs up an informal opinion given the State Aeronautics Commission earlier, are:

1. The bids taken for the flight control tower cannot be rejected on the basis that this may be the wrong site to improve.
2. Without the mutual consent of the federal government and Winnebago County, the Aeronautics Commission cannot unreasonably delay the current project.
3. Construction of the flight control tower, extension of the east-west runway and making this runway an instrument landing runway already have been authorized by the federal government as parts of one general project.
4. No Liability
5. The commission can delay making a finding on the petition of Winnebago County for the $130,000 taxiway and airplane parking apron expansion, on which a hearing was held Dec. 9. If the funds lapse because of the delay in making a finding, there is no liability on the part of anyone.
6. Once the governor has approved a finding by the commission as to the necessity of a certain airport project, the commission's duties are administrative and it no longer has any discretion concerning the desirability of the project.
7. Both Winnebago County and the federal government have the right to expect the project to be undertaken and completed and the

1,444 of 3,418 Pool Cars Loaded At Menasha Facility

Reprinted from Monday's Edition.

NEENAH — All previous records were broken in 1960 as the Wisconsin Paper Group, which provides pool service of less than carload lots from its 36 Wisconsin member mills to all U.S. markets, shipped 180 million pounds of paper and paper products, reported at the annual meeting at Neenah Saturday.

Some 1,444 of the 3,418 pool cars were loaded at the WPG warehouse and rail siding facilities at Menasha.

There were nearly 73,000 individual shipments during the year, an average of 1,399 per week, 279 per day or 38 per hour. Shipments increased 31 per cent in the last six years, Pearson said, from 55,849 in 1955 to the current high.

The WPG, in its 27th year, scheduled regular pool car shipments to 75 principle markets throughout the United States. Tonnage was deposited at 282 destinations. Savings of $1.49 a hundredweight resulted, Pearson explained, by combining less than carload lots of each producer into a carload lot for shipment.

O. Glenn Leach, Chicago, executive secretary of the National Paper Trade Association, speaker at the noon luncheon, said sales of industrial (wrapping) papers advanced more than 10 per cent in the last year while sales of fine (printing) papers were up 14 per cent.

Consumption of paper products has been growing at 2.5 per cent a year but capacity has increased at 3.8 per cent, he added.

Ask Policy Review on Snow Removal

could not possibly do the entire removal job free, because everyone would want the city to haul away the snow in front of his house. A nominal fee for residential areas was suggested.

There was no discussion of changing of eliminating assessments downtown, but altering present rates may come up for consideration under the policy review.

Other Business

In other business, the committee approved advertising for a 20-acre site for the proposed new city garage. It must be adjacent to the city so it can be annexed, and in an area where it can be easily serviced with water and sewer.

Requests from Sears Roebuck and Co. to blacktop a portion of the alley behind the store, construct a canopy on the front of the store, and block off part of the sidewalk while the store front is remodeled were approved.

Also approved were requests to change the name of Eugene Street to Brentwood Avenue and to give Gladys Avenue a dust tack coat at city expense. Residents of Gladys Avenue felt they had not received full benefit from the tack coat they were assessed for because the street was used as a main thoroughfare while other streets in the area were being built.

Request Denied

The committee denied a request from Ald. Robert Stump to grade and gravel and install water and sewer on a portion of Murray Avenue. The department of public works says there is a surface water drainage problem that must be solved first.

It tabled a request for grade and gravel, water and sewer on a new portion of Greenville Street. Director of Public Works Edwin Duszynski says a new sanitary relief sewer is needed to serve the area. He is afraid connecting new homes to the present sewer line will over load it and cause back-ups in basements. Plans are underway for the new relief sewer, he said.

Fara is seeking his fourth term on the Neenah council. He lost his first try in 1955, and then defeated Ivan Stilt in 1956.

In 1959 Fara defeated his present opponent Robert H. Lenth, who has taken out papers but has not filed.

Fara is employed as a maintenance planner at Kimberly - Clark Corp.

Schubert is making his first try for a public office. He is seeking one of the two school board seats up for election. The two incumbent board members up for reelection, Burton Spafford and Russ Wilcox, have not yet filed.

Heavy Snow

In New York, up to 3 feet of snow fell in Oswego County, southeast of Lake Ontario, beginning Monday afternoon and ending early today. Many schools were closed and numerous automobiles were trapped during the storm. The main roads were kept open however.

The storm also dropped 5 inches of snow on Buffalo's southern suburbs, near Lake Erie. Most of the state, however, escaped with only flurries and enjoyed a general warmup from the widespread sub-zero temperatures of the last 12 days.

The Hudson was frozen solid from West Point northward today with a convoy of four vessels locked in ice reported to be 18 inches thick. The convoy has been battling its way from Albany since Friday on the 150-mile trip to New York City.

Three Jams

Riverboat men waged a losing battle against the ice-choked Mississippi near Cairo, Ill. Three ice jams, two five miles long and one eight miles long, have all but halted traffic on the big river. A barge official said it would take 50-degree temperatures and rain to break the jams. The reading early today was 21.

One Mississippi towboat captain described the ice situation as the worst he'd seen in 28 years.

30-Inch Ice

The travel of small and large vessels in Chesapeake Bay was crippled by ice measuring up to 30 inches in some places. The only ship movement today was that of Coast Guard cutters and larger vessels for which channels were opened. The Coast Guard and Maryland State Police have delivered food to stranded residents of several bay islands.

The Weather Bureau said temperatures today might get up to 35, but the mercury would sink back into the teens at night.

Army engineers at Pittsburgh reported traffic at a standstill on the usually busy Allegheny River. Traffic was reported moving but slowed on the Monongahela and the Ohio.

Temperatures remained below freezing from the middle Mississippi Valley northward with sub-zero readings in northern Minnesota and northern New England.

Elsewhere a warming trend pushed the mercury above freezing from the Rockies and south central Plains eastward to the middle and south Atlantic and Gulf states.

Emergency Feeding Station For Birds Easy to Build

BY CAPPY DICK This fun-project is for boys and girls who live where snow sometimes cover the ground in winter. It is an emergency feeding station for birds. When a half-inch or more of snow is on the ground birds have a difficult time scratching for food and many of them die from hunger unless they are helped by human beings who thoughtfully scatter seeds and crumbs where the birds can readily find them.

The feeding station is simply a salt box hung on the branch of a tree as in Figure 2. Inside are bread crumbs, bird seed, nut meats and a piece of suet. An ordinary round salt box that has a metal spout in the cover is the kind to use. Let the top end of the box, with the metal spout, be the floor of the bird cafe. The closed spout will be a handy holder for the chunk of suet. Make pencil marks on the side of the box to guide your pocket knife when you cut a big opening (see the dotted lines in Figure 1). Next, make a small hole in what was the bottom of the box, but which will now be its top. Thread a stout cord through this hole, making a knot inside so the cord will not slip through. Use the

Some drivers apparently never "grow up." The following are signs of driver immaturity listed by the Institute for Safer Living: The chronic hornblower, the lane weaver and bobber, the shouter of low opinions at other drivers (whether other drivers hear or not), "crowding" other drivers, failing to signal properly, and resentment at being stopped by police. Remember that safety and driving maturity go hand in hand.

Cushion of Space

Nothing makes a driver feel more comfortable, or safe, than a cushion of space around his car. When you have hung the bird The Institute for Safer Living cafe in a tree, press a chunk of this safety cushion can suet into the metal spout and be maintained by keeping a proper sprinkle the other foods on the distance between your car and the floor of the box (Figure 3). Add car ahead, by allowing a crowding new food each day or two after driver behind to pass you if he de-removing any that has become sires, and by staying in the center, moist from snow. Christian Life Seen as Race, Fight, Trip

Believers Should Set
Sights on Eternal
Goals, Pastor Says

The Christian life was compared to a race, a fight and a pilgrimage by the Rev. Sylvester Johnson at St. Matthew Lutheran Church Sunday.

In urging early Christians to race toward a heavenly goal, an apostle was using a familiar picture of the Isthmian games, a national athletic contest, Pastor Johnson said.

The Christian's race "does not depend on fleetness of foot or quickness of limbs," the pastor explained. "It depends on Christian faith and devout and willing hearts."

Every Christian believer can reach the goal of eternal life if he endures to the end, Pastor Johnson said. "He should set his affections not on the things upon this earth, but on those things that are above... and by God's grace he will run his course to the end and obtain the prize of eternal life."

Grow Sluggish

The Christian must fight against an unholy trinity of the devil, the world and his own flesh, the minister continued. The devil encourages doubt, unbelief and despair; the world scorns the person who stands up for Christian principles; and man's own flesh, his evil nature, causes the Christian to grow sluggish in his Christian life, and be neglectful of prayer and public worship, Pastor Johnson warned.

He explained that, although deeds do not earn eternal life because God gives all things by grace, men will miss the goal if he does not fight for it.

The Christian's pilgrimage through life involves thankfulness, and seeking to please God, Pastor Johnson said.

"If faith be on our lips only and not in our hearts; if with our lives we deny what we profess with our lips; if our faith does not produce the fruit of an abiding Christian life, then our faith is a delusion and will not lead to life everlasting, our heavenly goal," he concluded.

Youth Pays $55 Fine on Two Counts

CHILTON — Richard Bangart, 22, route 1, Chilton, was fined a total of $55 by Justice John Daul after he admitted furnishing beer to minors and permitting an unauthorized person to drive his car.

His arrest by Calumet County police stems from the 105 mile-an-hour chase over gravel roads Sunday night which ended at a New Holstein police roadblock. Bangart was a passenger during the high-speed ride without headlights and had permitted the driver, a rural Chilton juvenile whose license was revoked, to operate the car.

Testimony of two Manitowoc County juvenile girls, who were also passengers, implicated Bangart on the "beer for minors" charge which resulted in a $35 fine. He paid $20 for permitting the unauthorized driving.

Halleck Named Head Of Psychiatric Service

MADISON — Dr. Seymour Halleck has been named chief of the psychiatric field service of the state division of corrections, which serves the inmates of state reformatory and prisons. He succeeds the late Dr. Peter Bell.

Dr. Halleck was a member of the University of Wisconsin faculty until he joined the state welfare administration about a year ago.

Wesley C. Stehr, Center, Wisconsin Telephone Co. division commercial manager, explains the operation of a microwave transmitter, the type used in satellite communication, to Arliss French, left, Lions Club program chairman, and Raymond Kleist, right, who introduced Stehr, the speaker for the Monday Lions Club meeting.

Executive Sees Increased Use Of Satellites

Will be Necessary for Communications,
Stehr Tells Lions

"Satellite communication is almost going to be a necessity in years to come," Wesley C. Stehr, telephone company division commercial manager in Appleton, told the Appleton Lions Club Monday.

Stehr explained the progress in communication with Echo I by the Bell System. The same speech was presented today by Donald Bradley, Appleton, state division traffic manager, to the Rotary Club and will be given Wednesday by Roy De Moe, Green Bay division plant manager, to the Kiwanis Club.

Echo I was launched Aug. 12, 1960, Stehr said, and as it traveled from west to east, a telephone conversation was bounced off it from a California laboratory to one in New Jersey.

Increase In Calls

This method of communication will increase because of the increased volume in telephoning, he said. In the last 10 years with a population increase of 20 per cent and a general communications increase of 100 per cent, there was an increase of 200 per cent in telephoning.

Satellite communication uses the broad band microwave, a radio wave of very high frequency which travels in a straight line and thus can be reflected, unlike ordinary radio waves which bend with the curvature of the earth. The waves, now used primarily for television transmission, can be used for long distances when transmitted from point to point or tower to tower, Stehr explained.

Balloon Tracked

Echo I is a 100 foot balloon at a height of 1,000 miles traveling at a speed of 16,000 miles an hour. The balloon is tracked by a radar and has an aluminum covered plastic surface for the reflection of the microwaves.

The radar follows Echo I and transmits its course to both the receiver and transmitter on the ground so they will be directed toward the balloon.

Fifteen satellites such as Echo I would be needed for continuous operation, Stehr said, but just three at a height of 22,500 feet would provide world wide service.

The Bell System received permission to place a satellite independently, he said, and would request ownership of a satellite communications system.

All Saints Church Approves Budget, Elects Officers

All Saints Episcopal Church approved a $49,100 budget for 1961 and elected officers at its annual meeting last night.

F. John Barlow was elected senior warden and Bruce B. Purdy junior warden, each for one year. David R. Meily, Howard Grupe and Charles Lingelbach were elected vestrymen for three years and Edward Uehlein for two years of an unexpired term. The vestry elected Allen Earle as parish treasurer.

The church's new parish education building will be dedicated April 30. Richard Baker is in charge of arrangements and Uehlein is building committee chairman.

Efforts Made to Free Ice-Breaker

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (AP)—The Coast Guard's biggest lakes ice-breaker, the Mackinaw, tried to free a sister ship from the ice of Grand Haven harbor today.

The cutter Woodbine sailed from Grand Haven three days ago for an ice-breaking chore at Muskegon but became locked in ice about a mile north of here.

Three other ships, including the Milwaukee Clipper, were freed Monday from dense ice fields 1 1/2 miles west of the Muskegon channel entrance.

The Clipper, which serves as an auto carrier in winter, became ice-bound Monday for the third time in three days. She was freed after eight hours. The tankers left untouched. Foot tracks from Polaris and Chicago Scooty the lumber company led to a wooded area and on to a nearby road.

The three ships were freed by the Mesquite, a Coast Guard cutter from Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and the Coast Guard Tug Arundel. Both stayed in Muskegon to keep a path open for Grand Trunk Railroad car ferries.

In addition to freeing the Woodbine, the Mackinaw will clear a path for several oil ships which are due in Grand Haven today.

Green Bay Man Connoisseur of Sly Jokes; Has Collection of 8,000

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — Karl M. Feldhausen of this city is a connoisseur of the quick bon mot, the sly joke, the two-line punch, the crafty, humor-laden innuendo, and the quick barb which may lacerate a whole society.

House

Avid collector of quick, joke-like observations, Feldhausen estimates that he has some 8,000 stories, anecdotes and "squabs" as he calls them.

His collection is not a means to underscore a pert sense of humor, but serves, instead, to aid him in his elective duty as secretary of the Green Bay Rotary Club and the additional duty of publishing its weekly bulletin.

In effect, Feldhausen is a Rotary-type newsman and the publication which he edits for the service club has a circulation of about 160.

The weekly bulletin which goes to Green Bay Rotarians and to members of a number of other organizations over some parts of the U. S. is called the "Rotattler," and Feldhausen has written and edited a whopping total of 1,432 consecutive ones since his election to the post just 30 years ago.

hausen manages to slip a tiny story or squib to hide among the general run of Rotary news.

"That way, I can tell if it's being read," he said, "and it certainly is."

Joke Headquarters

Feldhausen, who is president of the Feldhausen Insurance Agency at Green Bay, admits that he is a sort of joke headquarters, for dozens of people call him to say, "Karl, have you heard the one about . . ." and Feldhausen will listen and take notes. Chances are, the latest squib may find its way into the Rotattler.

One requisite for a joke to get into the weekly Rotary bulletin is that it be something less than ribald, and one of Feldhausen's swift jokes explains it in poesy, thus:

The guy who thinks our jokes are rough
Would quickly change his views
If he'd compare the jokes we print
With those we're scared to use!

The long-time Rotary secretary does not hesitate to tell where his many jokes come from: "I steal them," he said, and he does — from other bulletins, from joke books, from fellow members, friends, and even from an occasional television comedian.

Some Very Old

Some of his bon mots go far back into time. In one recent issue, the Rotattler carried a bright one which was penned by Josh Billings about a century ago. It went:

"It aint no disgrace for a man to fall, but to lay there and grunt is."

It is apparently the Feldhausen philosophy that if it is funny it is fine, and never mind the source. Too, people forget a bit of whimsy after a number of years, and who can say one tidy, bright one will not appear in his publication again and again.

Here is a sampling of the Feldhausen bon mots:

Swiped and Swapped

"A new broom sweeps clean but you can have more fun with an old rake."
"What did the hyena laugh at before people came?"
"The difference between the

Clothing Symbols To End Confusion

BY SYLVIA PORTER

At the bottom of the pile in my bureau drawer are two new blouses—one a soft yellow, the other a flimsy white when I bought them. The yellow became stained with the green that was in its design on its first washing, the white took on the shape of a hump rag on its first dry cleaning and I haven't worn either since.

There isn't a woman reading this who doesn't completely understand my resentment when ever I look at those blouses, my fury when I think of the dollars wasted. There isn't a man who hasn't reacted as violently when he has found his treasured sports shirt or favorite pair of slacks ruined because his wife (or laundress) didn't know whether the clothing was washable, dry cleanable, ironable or what.

Our Own Fault

There isn't a consumer who hasn't automatically ripped off the half-dozen or more labels on a new garment before wearing—one identifying the fiber, the second the textile mill, the third the manufacturer, etc.—and then dis-
